

DeepCapture

How DJT Lost the White House, November 3 – December 23: All the President's Team(s)

January 27, 2021 · 31 min read

I am going to refrain from saying too much about mine and Sidney's relationship. For one thing, over time it became something like I was working for her, helping her get answers to questions, and then, something like she became my lawyer. Whichever it was, in time the relationship became something for which privilege surely applies. One cannot selectively waive privilege, and just share the things one wants to share while claiming "privilege" on the others. I know that. But what I can say is that our relationship started out with me just a volunteer walking in off the street with information, and so I can talk about that phase of the relationship, but in time it became formal enough in one way or another I will not be able to say more.

Mayor Giuliani, however, never became my lawyer, and I will not be so constrained in my accounts, as my ultimate purpose, my only real purpose, is to deliver to the public as honest a rendering as I may construct of the events between November 3 and January 6. It seems like a historically worthy thing to do.

For my part, though they thought of me as a businessman, I introduced myself to them as the proprietor of this website, Deepcapture.com. I pointed out that it had won numerous awards for its business investigative journalism back in the 2008 era, and had also been voted the best journalism regarding corruption within the United States. I may have done other things in life but in addition I'm a journalist, and I have the rights any journalist has. Which means I can investigate what I want to investigate, I don't have to reveal a lot of things about how I learn things, and if I feel like sharing some of my findings with lawyers like Sidney and Rudy, it is not different than the dozens of other times this website has investigated things, and shared its findings with such lawyers, or even law enforcement.

That first meeting with Sidney lasted perhaps 45 minutes. I found her sitting practically by herself, maybe an assistant and junior lawyer with her, in a nearly-empty space on one side of the office building. She was well-informed and open-minded. When I arrived, the air had the strange tingle it has when people have just had words. We quickly got to business, and it became clear she was on top of things. Soon she showed me that her information covered a portion of the narrative about which we had some knowledge but not much (mostly concerning the origin of the machines and their reason for certain design flaws). She was in touch with people from the earliest days of the creation of these systems. On the other hand, as we ran through what my side of the table had already teased out of the data in the three days since the election, she showed she understood what we were saying, and we quickly tied things into what she already knew. It was a highly-productive first conversation, and she ended it telling me that I needed to go to the other side of the office, find Rudy, and immediately tell him everything I had just shared with her.

So my cyberbuddy and I went to the other side of the office building, to Rudy's side, which I understood to be the center of gravity of the operation.

I should explain what I expected to find. I expected to find a command post staffed by lawyers and quants. The quants would be doing the statistical work, driving answers that would feed lawyers being notified of the research into such oddities as I have walked through above, and would be availing themselves of whatever remedies the law surely applied in appropriate jurisdictions. There would be an information loop, obviously, such that the campaign headquarters in each state would be on a call once per day to receive daily updates on progress. Thinking that may be a fair bit for one 76 year old to manage, I imagined Rudy might have some strong COO who might be keeping assignments on track.

What I found is this:

The place was 20% empty, and another 30% were packing out their desks.

A conference room with a number of lawyers. At least 3 of them were good. These lawyers were the mules of the operation. They were each assigned one or more states. Yet there were things going on at the state level or below, bubbling up organically, research and lawyers jumping in filing actions. I came to learn that between Rudy's legal team and the campaign staff there was 0 communication, even though they jointly occupied 2/3 of an office story. I don't know if that was for a legal reason, or just the way they operated. Methinks the latter.

The Mediocrity – I am not going to be mean about it. For example, I am not going to reveal the gender or other details about this person (other than to say, imagine a person who is a lawyer and who had once made a career at one of the better-known government agencies). But given how stunningly horrible this person was to work with, how the Mediocrity went out-of-way to be horrible to work with, and because of how destructive this behavior was, I am simply to refer to this person as the "Mediocrity".

The Commish – Think of Mike, from Breaking Bad. The quintessential cop. Tough, perfectly correct and courteous, but stays poker-faced and dead-eyed at all times. Sits in meetings with his hand casually covering mouth, saying nothing. When asked something, might open his mouth, and if he does he invariably has something highly intelligent to say. Making one wonder, "Why does he work so hard to keep his opinion to himself?"

The Mayor – Rudy Giuliani. I was in the hospital in New York for the late 1980's, and remember the occasional Mafia killings outside some mid-town steakhouse or Brooklyn joint (it was always good for business, they'd say). Rudy was US Attorney there and then, breaking up the Mob. I always felt some affinity for him because of that overlap in time and place. And of course, on 9/11, he became "America's Mayor". In the years after that our paths intersected a few times, but he never gave indication of remembering me anytime we crossed paths. His security company handled an issue for me when I was fighting with Wall Street. I doubt he remembers, but when he ran for President a dozen years ago and came through Utah, for some reason I was invited to introduce him at a gathering in some large Utah home. I studied up on him, drove over, and gave a short introduction on Rudy Giuliani to the crowd, lasting about 30 seconds. He took over and we shook hands, and that was the sum of my contact with Rudy Giuliani in his political days.

I do remember in the Q&A that day something interesting happening: a question on abortion came from the staunchly pro-life crowd. Rudy answered the questioner's thrust, "No, I'll never support a law that criminalizes abortion for the woman. Laws on abortion have always been directed at the activities of the doctors, not the mothers. I'll never put a woman in jail for having an abortion. If that is what you folks are looking for, I'm not your guy." He lost 2/3 of the audience in that moment, but gained the respect of 1/3, among them, myself, if only out of respect for such rare directness from a politician.

=====

So 12 years later, on a Friday afternoon at about 3 PM, I walked into the office space that was being used both by the Trump campaign, and by the law firm that was forming up around Rudy Giuliani to investigate, address, and challenge, the election irregularities which were surfacing from the 2020 election.

It was nothing like the outfit that I expected to find (explained above), with data-gathering feeding decision-making feeding information loops to keep a large and geographically distributed workforce operating successfully. Law firms are notoriously poorly-managed businesses in any case, they truly are, but the law firm-campaign space that had taken shape within that office space was a particular shit-show. People wandered vaguely from meeting to meeting. The meetings I saw were run like bull sessions, with no agenda, no format, and no apparent sense of urgency.

Within about 45 minutes I was ushered to a room where I was to have 30 minutes with Rudy. Physically, he is more of a grandfather than I remember, hunched a bit more, sharp, irascible. I explained to him carefully the outline of what we understood at that point, an outline such as the reader might have after watching this presentation by the MIT Math PhD Dr. Shiva, or the exposition by Seth Keshel, as well as the cascade of stories of porous security in election software all referenced above. I feared overwhelming him, so I tried to simplify. Given that he sat grunting stoically as I spoke, it was difficult to judge what was sinking in. Yet after only 10 minutes I saw Rudy checking his multiple phones for texts, right in front of me as we sat talking. Conversing with one of his assistants, sending someone on a side errand, or receiving a report back. It felt rather strange to be talking to a man who was paying so little attention to me, but the Commish, sitting on the side, motioned for me to continue. After no more than 30 minutes I was ushered out of the office, but told to hang around.

Eventually I was brought back into a smaller room with Mayor Giuliani, and again asked to explain what I think happened. Realizing I may have overwhelmed him with my earlier explanation, gotten him lost in the forest for the trees, I broke it down simply and slowly, like one would for, well, one's 76 year old Grandfather. Again within 5-10 minutes he was fidgeting, grunting on occasion, sending people on unrelated side errands, checking his multiple phones for texts and typing some people back... Meanwhile, I tried to stay on track. Yet there was a moment 15 minutes in when I got a whiff of something in that small office... Medicine? Booze? Just as I was taking a sniff to decide, someone rushed in with something unrelated issue, and I was escorted from the office.

Again I wandered around among the staff, most of whom were professing to know nothing about what was going on, and many others of whom were packing up desks in bankers' boxes. I was perplexed, and found myself drifting around the convoluted office space. 30 minutes later I was strolling outside some other conference room down the hall, when I heard Rudy's familiar voice saying, "...don't understand a fucking thing this guy's telling me..." drifting out of a doorway. Startled, I looked around the corner, and there was Rudy talking to whatever group of staffers happened to be sitting worshipfully in that conference room to which he had moved.

Several staffers pulled me aside in a hallway. What Mayor Giuliani is going to need, one told me, is a one page summary. Very simplified.

Another added, but with graphs and data.

Another piped up, And bulletpoints. The Mayor likes bulletpoints!

But no more than one page! Repeated the first.

Insulted at Mediocrity and the 20-something staffers who were telling me how to write, and giving such asinine advice in the process, I promised I would get them something by the end of the weekend. 48 hours. I asked them for one favor: any requests that came from them should be orchestrated through one of their people, who would call one person whom I would designate among my cyber-team, and that way we would have some structure, and keep track of deliverables as we sought to accommodate their needs, so that it would not all turn into a shit-show.

Then I left and drove back to DC. By late that evening, I had learned that there were three different open requests from three people on Rudy's team to various of my colleagues within the Bad News Bears. One was only going to handle passing requests of this type, one only wanted to handle passing on requests of that type... And the shit-show began.

I do not want to claim that everybody in that large but melting office space was incompetent. As I said, there were three competent, skillful lawyers (a fourth if one counted a Constitutional law scholar who was in and out). But the atmosphere was one of despair, there was zero leadership shown, staffers were wondering around in the dark, and the meetings seemed like sophomore bull sessions rather than anything organized and disciplined.

From occasional contacts with several of those solid staffers over the weeks that followed, I learned what had had happened that day just before I arrived. Rudy had declaimed that, "You can never prove election fraud in a courtroom!" and had declared it was not going to be the strategy. The strategy was going to be to challenge things on procedural grounds: "This county in this state had one set of rules, this other county in that same state used a different set of rules, that violates due process and Equal Protection of the 14 Amendment." So I was correct: just before I arrived there had been a huge blow-up between Rudy and Sidney in front of everyone, with Rudy ending by shouting at Sidney

Powell and sending her away, in front of an office of dozens of people. Declaring that none of this was going to be about election fraud, and putting his lawyers to work on their procedural filings.

Later, a participant from Rudy's team told me that initially Rudy had not even wanted to do that much. He had wanted to make three more-or-less token challenges in three states, and call it a day. Sidney's adamancy that he was missing the Big Picture had caused him ultimately to relent, a little, and allow a more aggressive posture to be taken. But still, nothing was to be about election fraud and the possibility of a mass rigging of the election. Rudy could tolerate hearing about a couple hundred dead people in Philadelphia voting, but he did not want to hear about anything more complicated than that.

That Friday afternoon just days after the election, I had, in fact, stumbled in on Sidney just as she was recovering from that exchange. And she had sent me back in to talk to Rudy about ways a new form of election fraud might have emerged that was not about hundreds of dead people voting in some city, but was about the possibility of several hundreds of thousands of votes being injected into certain key locations. Rudy had just not been processing any of it, and that was why he kept trying to talk with me about how many dead people did I think voted in Philadelphia.

Over that weekend, Sidney sent one of her brilliant junior attorneys over to sit with myself and a few of the dolphin-speakers (another name I use for the cyber-heads who sit in a room and geek out to each other in a technical language of acronyms). That junior lawyer had anticipated staying 30 minutes, but after an hour and a half she went into the next room and called Sidney. She told Sidney that we had the goods, or at least a well-developed understanding of what had gone on in various states, even specific counties. From that point forward our relationship with Sidney was perfect: as we researched and discovered things, we could bring them to her and she and her staff would patiently listen closely, and ask intelligent questions. And they began incorporating the material into their pleadings.

That being the case, however, I will say no more about how Sidney and I worked.

=====
Mark Twain once ended a long letter to a friend by writing, “If I’d had more time I would have written you a shorter letter.” In those two days after meeting the Mayor in his offices I had time, and by Sunday afternoon I was putting the finishing touches on the most simplified one-page account that I could possibly create. My aim was to make the story so pared down that this time the Mayor could not lose the forest for the trees, that the Mayor would grasp the entire narrative in one succinct one-page read. At that point, once he understood the Big Picture, we could begin diving in on each of the sub-claims: data would be gathered, affidavits taken, and so on. But to begin with, Rudy needed to read and absorb a one-page briefing (in fact it was about 80% of a page), into which I had distilled the research of about a half-dozen different people who had been working down a half-dozen different alleys. It was as pure a distillate as could be achieved, if I say so myself. I included a second page with one graph, concerning one state, backing up a claim made in that one-page narrative: once Rudy grasped that, I figured, once we agreed where we were, I would then supplement with additional graphs for each of the other relevant states. Affidavits that were being gathered would be adduced to document each of the other points made. And so on and so forth. But this time we were going to crawl, walk, run.

Sunday evening I got a phone call at 11 PM, telling me Mayor Giuliani and his entourage were dining in such-and-such a Georgetown restaurant, and would I mind bringing what I had written over to them. I got dressed and went, but when I arrived his security told me to sit in the bar and wait. I did for 45 minutes, until someone came out of the Mayor’s private dining room to tell me the Mayor asked that I not come back to his table (security was concerned about me, for some reason), but asked me to simply send into the private dining room the paper I had written. I sent it in, then left.

Later, two people who were in that room told me what happened when my paper arrived.

First, in the 90 minutes between 11:30 PM and 1 AM, Mayor Giuliani imbibed three triple scotches on ice. Nine shots of alcohol. Those relating this story could not vouch for what he had drunk before 11:30.

Second, in front of everyone Rudy took my paper and read it for perhaps 45 seconds, then put it aside saying, "I'll get to this later."

Third, the Mediocrity was at the table. The Mediocrity picked up the one pager and, holding it between fingers like it was a turd, announced with a laugh, "Can you believe Byrne worked all weekend and this is all he wrote?"

Nine hours later, Monday morning at 10 AM, Rudy Giuliani took the stage at a joint press conference held with Sidney Powell and Jenna Ellison. Rudy was meant give a synopsis of where things stood, and then introduce Sidney Powell, who was going to discuss the possibility of mass election fraud on a scale no one was yet comprehending. That it was not about a couple hundred dead people voting here, or a few hundred people who had moved away there, but about something deeper, systemic..... Unprecedented.

Instead of going to plan, Rudy Giuliani got distracted, got carried away, and huffed and puffed his way around the stage for 40 minutes about how many hundreds of dead people had voted here and how illegal people had voted there.... As he worked himself up like Grandpa, repeating all the same points he had been making for days, hair die ran down both sides of his face, unnoticed.

Nine hours earlier, he had had nine shots of whiskey in under 90 minutes.

Another story that came to me from those times within Rudy's offices: One Pennsylvania lawyer, a female, had taken on the job of a filing in Pennsylvania. She received a message from opposing Kirkland & Ellis counsel that was so threatening, so unprofessional, that the Kirkland later had to withdraw from the case INSERT CLIPe. Shaken, the female Pennsylvania lawyer turned in a draft filing but withdrew her representation. Rudy had had to find a firm, overnight, that would finish the Pennsylvania filing. He finally found a lawyer in Texas with election experience who finished it, and got it filed in Pennsylvania. It made no mention of election fraud, and was instead focused on the procedural Equal Protection arguments. Rudy only read it on his way driving to the Pennsylvania court where he was to defend it: upon reading it, he apparently told his companions, This is the worst piece of shit filing I've ever had to stand up in a courtroom and defend. He went into that Pennsylvania courtroom and was destroyed.

=====

We got a call from Rudy's team that we needed to have a set of computer forensic specialists down in Georgia the following morning. They would be provided access to a set of voting machines they could "exploit". The licensed and certified computer forensic people in question demanded answers, such as, "Where are the machines? What kinds of machines are they? Tampering and playing around with election equipment being a federal felony, so under what legal authority will we be operating? Will there be law enforcement of any kind to review and document all actions taken, for any chain-of-evidence questions that might later arise?"

The response from Rudy's team was, "We've got all that covered. Get down to Georgia, stat!"

With misgivings, I caused the requisite people to fly in to Georgia from various locations. They were driven to some precinct where, it turned out, someone had indeed vaguely promised that some machines could be inspected.... But that person was not there that day. Or had changed his mind. The dolphin-speakers sat around most of the day, then were driven to another precinct where, this time, they were told there would be someone with a court order granting them access to certain machines. No such person was there, but a group of hostile county employees were. Again they sat around waiting for lawyers arranged by Rudy's team to show up with paperwork, but they never arrived. After hours of waiting, in the early evening they drove away, and as they sat at a traffic light a half-mile down the street, they saw 17 cop cars, lightbars flashing, go rolling by to the building they had just left. My Bad News Bears quickly and safely returned to their dens.

=====

A number of my colleagues interacted with Rudy from time to time, afternoons and evenings, over the next month and a half. Nearly all mentioned two things: the inordinate amount of attention he was paying to his daily podcast, and second, his drinking. Something was clear to all who were with him in the evening, and also to some of those who were with him in afternoons: he was perpetually shit-faced. His own staffers were mentioning it to us. Certainly every evening, or almost every evening, and most afternoons. That, and his podcasts, were the only guarantees in Rudy's life.

=====

Let me move on, and instead, describe what I have only previously hinted at. In the days after the election people were getting in contact from all over the country. Often, there were networks of people in various states, self-organizing and diving in on various aspects of the rig: what people had experienced in polling stations, what they had been told, what polling observers had experienced. These people sent delegations to find me. Soon there were witnesses to various events flying in, and their network "leaders" who had found me. I was deluged with offers of assistance: volunteers from all over the country, many with backgrounds in military and law enforcement, were getting in touch through the grapevine, and asking to be allowed to help in any way. So while these other political matters were going on, I was simultaneously fashioning, well, exactly what I expected to find in Rudy's office. An "operation", of some kind. We had the cyber-guys already, and quants. But we had so many whistleblowers and people with relevant stories seeking us out, and so many were flying to DC to find me, that we had to set up operations in hotels scattered around the city. Out of volunteers with background as military officers we found our debriefers, and created a system where they were privately and professionally meeting with the whistleblowers and witnesses, listening to their stories, and crafting summaries. These were being fed up a chain into some analysts, who were jockeying those pieces together with information coming together from our cyber guys, and other sources, and building a picture of increasing granularity of what had happened on November 3-4.

Somewhere in those months General Michael Flynn and I had met telephonically. There was a strange connection between us, a deceased man who had played a role in both of our lives decades past. Conversing with Mike was like meeting and speaking with another entrepreneur: we finished each other's sentences, and saw what needed to be done almost without conversing. At some point he arrived on the scene, and I told him about this assemblage of talents that had come together in various ways: the cyber guys, the quants, the flow of witnesses and affiants into our circle, our structure of multiple debriefers, our information flow back up to a circle of analysts putting everything together. I had rough-hewn the whole structure expecting Mike's eventual arrival,, with the understanding that when he arrived I would be handing the keys to it over to him.

I received a request from him to relocate the top of that structure to a location far away from DC, far away from any city, in fact. The information flow that was springing into existence was to come up those networks around the country, through the capillaries of the debriefers and report writers, and into a central analytic station. Mere yards away, there would be an office full of lawyers acting as the legal intake for the information we were drawing up. The structure I had built by instinct, he wanted plugged into the legal teams who would be doing the work. We agreed that Sidney and Rudy would both get any output from this work.

I moved the structure to the location he requested. There was a team of lawyers in place there. However, around them there were a variety of people with no discernible roles and who gave me the creeps. One ex-Agency female, a large, loud woman, and not a lawyer, suddenly sprung up and became quite the organizer and gatekeeper. Another participant, a cocky English man with a military background, was there, and suddenly announced that he was the gatekeeper between this room and that. It all began giving me quite a nasty feeling. But after only two days I got word from Flynn: things having been stood up and roughed-out as we had agreed (as had seemed obvious to both of us, with barely a need to converse), Flynn called and told me he wanted to fly in and take over, and have me go back to DC to start speaking to the public. We agreed we would cross paths for an hour in a certain location as we switched places

I got ready to leave. I told the cocky British man that I needed him to pass on three key messages to someone I was not going to have a chance to see before leaving. He agreed. I said each one simply, and he nodded curtly after each. When I was done I asked him if he understood. He said casually, "Yep. Got em all."

“OK, repeat them back to me,” I told him. He stared at me, unblinking. “You say you got them, so repeat them to me.” He could come up with nothing. He had not actually listened to a word. I told him to get a pen and paper, and make three notes. He did so begrudgingly.

For some reason I was supposed to take the ex-Agency woman back to DC with me. We drove to the place at which Mike Flynn was arriving. Once there, it turns out she slipped off to the side and told someone that she had learned something that meant she had to stay behind. Flynn arrived, and we had 30 minutes on a tarmac together. We caught up, synched up. I told him that I had misgivings about this British guy who was at the camp, and about the ex-Agency woman who was hovering around. Then I left.

The next day, back in DC, I received word: the ex-Agency woman had made up a lie to get permission to stay. It had something to do with something I had asked her to do, or had asked her not to do, or some research, or something: whatever it was, it was fabrication, designed to get herself turned around and reassigned to stay in that operation in the countryside. She was confronted, and spilled the beans: she was actually working for someone else, and was supposed to stay down in that operation in the countryside, spying and reporting back. They also confronted the cocky British guy, and though I think he never broke, I am told he was definitely implicated in the minds of everyone there. Security walked both characters off of the premises. After their departure, a device of some kind was found wired in one of the key rooms on the premises.

Now this is not to say that all time was being wasted. The structure of information flow I described, the one that I had rough-hewn, was taken over by a three star General who had led a career in Military Intelligence, and he made it far better. Soon it was spitting out refined analyses, reports, information that began informing and filling up the briefs Sidney Powell was writing. We made sure that everything that was provided was also provided to Rudy.

That is the background to presentations such as the ones I have been referencing. Again, for an excellent example, watch Seth Keshel, here. Seth is a former Army Captain in Intelligence, and played a key role in that structure I just described. Seth is a quirky guy, certainly on the spectrum, but a polysci junky, and just all about the precinct math. That link goes to a 21 minute video that provides an excellent example of the kinds of work that was being done within the team that was self-organizing with some rough-fashioning from me, and lots of refinement from Mike Flynn. For a good understanding of the tyoe of work that was being done, you should watch at least a portion of this.

If this video does not play click here: <https://youtu.be/xXMW9VNMPT4>

Still, back in DC, rejoined with my Bad News Bears friends, we became aware of a disconnect we could not seem to fix. The Mediocrity had evolved into our point of contact with Rudy's team, and nothing seemed to flow well. On November 26, Thanksgiving Day, we were all sitting together in a restaurant in DC, and discussing their problems. How the Mediocrity seemed to think they were peons, were telling them, "Go here, go there," with no explanatory information, no sense of "Hey teammates, this is what is going on, and we are going to work on it together!" Super-controlling about information, plans, access. Sitting there eating our turkey dinner, they gave me quite an earful. I had trouble believing the stories they were telling me. Among them were some truly horrible ones concerning the Mediocrities proclivity for hitting on people of the opposite gender, and possibly the same gender, in ways that were embarrassing to all present (one of my colleagues had been asked to go see the Mediocrity one evening, and when the hotel door opened the Mediocrity was standing there in underwear). But now it was boiling over, they said, because that day they had received an order that they were all to be in Antrim, Michigan the following day. Again, she would answer no questions about where they were going exactly, what machines they were expecting to confront, under whose authorizes would they be opening machines and imaging hard drives, even how long would they be there, should they arrange their own rental cars, etc. None of it was being explained. The Mediocrity had just sent word to be in such-and-such a place in Michigan, stat.

Then, life being as funny as it is, we looked up, and sure enough, there was the Mediocrity strolling through the restaurant not far from our table. We caught each other's eye, and soon Mediocrity was standing over our table, talking. Thinking it was a nice opportunity to pour oil on troubled waters, I received Mediocrity gracefully, intending to converse in front of my colleagues civilly, and get things back on track.

Soon, the talk turned to Michigan, and I was asked would I be able to get the right people there in the morning at the appointed hour. Thinking I might use it as a moment of management development, I gently suggested, "You know, when we get requests like these, it would really be good to be better informed. My colleagues want to know things like, 'Exactly where will they be going? Are the people there going to be cooperative? What kinds of machines might we be exploiting? What legal authority is enabling us to image one of these voting machine hard drives? Are people going to be staying overnight? Will there be rental cars provided?' You know, just the basics before people get thrown on some mission like happened in Georgia."

"Look," the Mediocrity said, standing over us at late Thanksgiving Dinner. "First, what is your corporate structure?"

We all looked at each other, not having really given the matter much thought. We were just a bunch of people who had found each other and were trying to expose what looked like a world-historic crime together. Finally I said, "Our corporate structure is that we're the Bad News Bears. I'm the team coach."

"Ok Patrick," the Mediocrity continued. "Here's what's going on. I've told you where you need to be in Michigan tomorrow Be there. Or tell us you cannot, and we'll find someone who can."

In my astonishment I began to respond, and to my further astonishment, the Mediocrity began speaking over me. "I'm telling you where you need your team to be. If you can't handle it-

I did something I had not used in a couple decades, something I had seen an economist professor friend do to another professor, a Lefty, who had continuously interrupted him (as Lefties are want to do in place of having good arguments). I just started speaking, “Well it may sound like I was finished speaking but I actually wasn’t and while you might think you are going to speak over me actually I am just going to continue talking like this until you shut up and I did not care if it takes all night because I know that it may have sounded like I was finished but actually I wasn’t and while you might think otherwise I promise you I can keep this up longer than you...” and so on and so forth. Without a break. For about 15 seconds until the Mediocrity got that I was serious, and was just going to continue speaking like that over and over until the Mediocrity shut up. Which eventually the Mediocrity did, looking somewhat astonished, having evidently gotten away with such behavior in decades of federal employment.

At which point I politely said, “Where in the fuck do you get off? We don’t work for you. We are volunteers here offering to help you do things you have no clue how to do. Go find someone else anytime you want. The way you folks work in this city is astonishing. If you ever try to work at a modern company like Google, or Facebook, your ass will be fired in a New York minute. You suck.”

I surprised myself, because I do not normally speak that way to people, but I did that time. I told Mediocrity that conversations with Mediocrity were constant games of narcissist deflection, how amateurish Mediocrity was, how anyone walking around saying “Failure is not an option!” and “Either you do this or I find someone who will!” is a mediocrity who may have learned management within the government but who if ever moved to the private sector would get fired by noon. Any reasonably competent person would provide, when making such a request to my colleagues, relevant information. Fill them in on the mission, let them brainstorm and contribute.... I saw Mediocrity’s eyes water, and realizing I was overdoing it, I got up to gently and softly escorted Mediocrity away from the table. I tried to soothe things over a bit, and put a nice façade on things, and not leave Mediocrity in embarrassment.

As we parted, Mediocrity turned to me and said, “Don’t worry. I’ll be with the President. I’ll make sure you get full credit for all of this.”

Exasperated, I returned to my seat and friends. Minutes later we saw that Mediocrity had, in fact, been part of a larger party, and walking out with that party was none other than Mayor Giuliani. I quickly saddled up to him on the side. It was about 10:30 PM, his step seemed unsteady, and I went to his elbow like one would escorting an unsteady Grandpa to his car. We tried speaking, but whatever he was saying was indistinct to me. Finally I told him, “Sir, this is not working out well with your colleagues. May I respectfully request a way that I might contact you directly, so we can keep things on better track?” The Mayor pulled out his cell phone and had me take his number.

In that weeks that followed I called and texted that number on at least a half-a-dozen occasions. Not once did Rudy ever respond to me.

Over these weeks there were a number of excellent White House staffers whom I got to know. Smart young men and women in their late twenties, generally. Some (but not all) were huge Trump enthusiasts. They filled me in on details here and there, snippets of what was happening behind the scenes between the campaign, Rudy, and the White House. One evening, once we were close enough, I let down my hair and said, “This is a shit-show. Is this normal?” One of the staffers (and, mind you, a very pro-Trump one) said, “This is it. This is the Trump White House. This is how everything has run for four years.”

=====

The Bad News Bears got where they needed to be in Michigan, when they needed to be there. The Mediocrity was there, along with other lawyers and staff from Rudy’s team. They went to the precinct in which they were expected, and like Georgia, it was a bust. The machines were not tabulating machines such as we had been led to expect. No real authorities were there, or law enforcement, or warrants: just a mildly cooperative 75 year old lady working in a public building that had acted as a voting precinct.

While the Mediocrity hung around chatting up county workers of the opposite sex, the dolphin-speakers went to work. It turned out the 75 year old lady who ran the place had a story about how, on the day after the election, some people from “county” had shown up and instructed her to insert her card and re-run her machine using some different inputs. What she was saying did not make sense, and it was clear that they had chosen to an old woman who was probably not capable of sending her own texts. Finally she mentioned that, unbeknownst to county, she had kept both the paper audit trail of the original run, and the re-run, and had stored them in a closet. Our geeks got excited, and had her bring them out: they unrolled them on a long carpet, and in a few minutes of study, they began finding things. Alarming things.

The Bad News Bears finally got Mediocrity to break away from the coffee-klatch being had with the deputies, and pointed out what they were finding in the paper rolls. Finally they suggested, “You are a lawyer, right? Don’t you think you should be getting some affidavits from” the 75 year old lady and a couple other of the employees who had shared telling information? “Oh yes, of course of course,” scrambled Mediocrity, and did so.

Those learnings and those affidavits were fed to a Michigan lawyer who was pursuing his own election fraud case in Michigan. Days later a judge read it, and found it alarming enough he gave a court order for a formal exploitation of the Antrim County voting machines. The Bad News Bears returned to Antrim County and this time, with a proper court order in their pocket, they were able to image hard drives, and returned to base camp with those images. In the next four days they performed a month’s worth of work (by working in staggered shifts around the clock), first breaking the security on the imaged hard drives, then reconstructing the files, then analyzing them. That was all fed up through the system, and emerged about a week later as an eye-opening report that created a national stir, known as the Antrim County Computer Forensics Report.

Other telling things were happening nationally. Some of the concerned federal employees mentioned earlier had been tracking events in a Western state, and were sure they knew how the vote flipping was being done there. The problem is, the relevant judge (a Democrat), when asked to allow inspection, would insist on stalling for a few days, thus giving time for the opposition to go in and do a “smash-down” (a computer scientist’s term for fixing the evidence after-the-fact, in anticipation of an audit, and making sure everything ticked and tied correctly). But they made a mistake in one location, and their smash-down did not work. The data that turned up was so telling, and so indicative of fraud, that the lawyers went back to the judge arguing it provided grounds for a far more sweeping order that would let them examine machines across the state. The judge agreed in principle, but suggested that the precinct needed to have its data verified again before he could use its discrepancies to justify such a sweeping order. The concerned federal employees put the location in question under observation, and sure enough, that night there were three cars in the precinct parking lot. They were redoing their smash-down so that this time it would work. The license plates on those cars tracked back to a left-wing union which shows up repeatedly in the background of many of these matters. But in the morning, the data was fixed, and no further orders were coming out of that judge. However, unbeknownst to them, the scientists in question had recovered enough material both to document the original, and the smash-down.

Meanwhile, back in DC, I was hearing odd things out of the Rudy-world. I was hearing that he was getting paid $100,000/week, and there were those in his environ claiming he was just mailing things in for a paycheck.

More importantly, from Rudy's operation we began hearing the number "$207 million". The claim was that the Republican party had raised $207 million to "stop the steal". In one version it grew past $300 million. In one version of the staff rumor, the finger on the button for those millions was a high-level woman at the Republican National Committee. In another version, it was all being jointly managed by that RNC woman and the Commish, and they were keeping an eye to the future. In almost everyone's version of the story, $100 million had been set aside by Jared and Ivanka for future legal defense. But whoever was in charge, they were sitting on all the money, and I can promise, not one penny of it spent in any way to help "stop the steal". Whatever Republican loyalists around the country coughed up those hundreds of millions, in donations of $10 and $20.... They were all fleeced. It became a big joke: there was a pot of hundreds of millions of dollars given by Republicans to Republicans to help reverse-engineer and unscramble whatever the hell had had happened on November 3, and not a penny was going to any activity related to doing so. It was all being held by people at the top licking their lips.

=====

In Georgia, the fight became surreal. A young man who was dating the daughter of the governor got involved, then his car exploded in an accident (see “BIZARRE EXPLOSION CRASH IN GEORGIA – KILLS HARRISON DEAL” December 5, 2020). Truly, it was on a highway, it got struck on the side, and it blew up. The engine was thrown 75 yards. Videos of the accident (most of which seem to have been removed from the internet) showed a car burning in a fireball: it was quite an ornery car crash.

Then the Georgia Bureau of Investigation got involved. Three days later, the officer conducting the investigation committed suicide.

One faction from Georgia had been in touch with me from days after the election. This was an interesting network of people with law enforcement and quasi-law-enforcement backgrounds. Since November 4 they had been reverse-engineering the steal there. They had put people and locations under observation, had been filming varieties of activities through telephotos. They mapped and tracked numerous parties involved, and even tracked the organizers down to a small element, a Leninist cadre, who were staying in a motel together and managing shenanigans around the state. For their own reasons this network helping me needed to stay in the shadows, yet as the weeks rolled by they were providing good information helping us reconstruct what had happened in Georgia.

A technologist named Jovan Pulitzer (inventor of the now ubiquitous QR-code) went public regarding his investigations into the Georgia election. The best short video of Jovan explaining his work is here:

Over those weeks, Rudy managed to schedule a few hearings in a few states. Some were quasi-official, but most were conducted out of rented hotel spaces. His star witness was the Colonel from military intelligence with whom I had been working since August, who essentially was brought to these different states to report and synthesize the information that the Bad News Bears were surfacing. He did an able and convincing job, but we all began to wonder: what's the strategy here? Is there a strategy? Rudy's strategy (if there is one) seems to be a long march through the courts. Taking cases to the states and appellate levels. Imagining he was going to win just by running the tables through the court system. But that was not going to work, as the courts are ponderous anywhere, especially disinclined to get involved in election matters, and were already setting court dates out past January 20. Yet Rudy just kept plodding along, with an occasional hearing, a daily podcast. It did not seem to make any sense.

One activity that began bearing fruit was our investigations into foreign involvement in the election. This will be the subject of a piece of its own.

=====

Mike, Sidney, myself, and others developed a solution-in-a-can. It was the same solution we had started within in mid-November, and ran like this: Under various orders signed previously by both Obama and by Trump, if an election had foreign entanglement, the President had quite a rather broad spectrum of powers. There was indisputable evidence of foreign involvement on countless fronts, but we were asking that only a narrow set of his powers be invoked: based on the information that had been turned up, the President should use his powers under the requisite Executive Orders simply to send US Marshalls and the National Guard into the five problematic counties, open up the paper ballot backups, and recount them right there, on livestreamed TV. If there were no big discrepancies, Trump would concede. If there were big discrepancies, such as half-a-million vote discrepancies that we suspected might fall out, then more aggressive courses of action could be countenanced, such as re-rerunning the election in those counties or states. The recount of the five counties could be easily done in under a week, and if it justified further action, the entire resolution could still be done on a Constitutional timeline.

It was either that, or an election whose integrity was doubted by 47% of the electorate had to be choked down.

General Flynn drafted a beautiful operational plan for such a mission. One signature from the President, and the whole thing would be set in motion. The right teams created from the right military and National Guard Units, the precise directives to each... The most expansive version of the plan had the first wave of recounting to be conducted in 17 counties around the nation, Democrat and Republican, so no one could claim that results were cherry-picked. That most expansive version of the plan envisioned paper ballot recounting, plus imaging of hard drives of these voting machines for further forensic analysis (but not “seizing” the machines: they were to be left in place, and just have their hard drives imaged). However, in a pinch, we could hit just five counties and recount the boxes of paper ballots and have a preliminary answer in 2-3 days, thus ending a great deal of national drama. Mike and Sidney had the legal research, the draft finding, the general’s Execution Checklist that would, upon Presidential signature, make everything run like a Swiss watch.

And yet, things slid and slid. Rudy went off to organize a hearing in a hotel room and needing one of our people there to speak.... Days spent waiting for warrants that never came.... Absolutely no sense that there was anyone with a plan, executing it. We saw the Constitutional deadlines beginning to loom...

The days turned into weeks. December came, then mid-December. Yes we had matters spinning in various states, yes we had cyber-teams inspecting packet traffic and finding foreign influences, yes we were finding smart thermostats that had been breached from overseas, yes we were learning why voting rolls were kept live overseas.... But Mike and I had a sense that our side was chasing its tail. That the other side was just running out the clock. And Rudy's approach would surely allow that.

At one point I learned how the President was staying involved. Periodically, Rudy Giuliani and the Mediocrity were going over to the White House to brief him. Really, no kidding: the person who was so bad my colleagues had declared they would quit rather than work another moment with that person, and the 76 year old guy who had trouble sending an email and was spending his days sloshed, were the ones explaining to the President what was going on and what his options were. At first I thought it was some kind of sick joke, but I confirmed it. The Mediocrity and the Mayor were the ultimate point-people on the mission of stopping this world-historic task.

Flynn and I felt sick. A frequent subject of mutter between us ran along the lines, "Why the fuck are we doing this?" The president's children were off, uninvolved, or planning retirements, or pep-rallying. We could detect no discernible strategy out of the President's team, no marching orders, just an organization wandering around and melting as it did so. A Mediocrity who was so bad, we had had to make special arrangements such that the Mediocrity did not have direct contact with our people, or they were going to flee. And the whole mess was led by a 76 year old gentleman, a man much beloved by his country, but who six weeks into what might be the most sophisticated cybertheft in all of history, could still not have a coherent conversation beyond, "Did you hear that 211 dead people in Philadelphia voted? Dead people?!?!? And they voted! Have you heard?!?"

And then we would remember why were doing it: America’s brand is “elections”. It is what we do. We had a national election that appeared to have been compromised in a remarkably precise and strategic way, it showed the hand of foreign involvement, it might be part of a Chinese psyop to take over our country, and there might never be a free, non-gooned election in America again. That’s why we were not supposed to quit.

Which is why, a few days before Christmas, Mike, Sidney, and I decided it was time to take a chance. With no invitation, by hook or by crook, we were going to Jedi-mind-trick our way into the White House, get to the Oval Office, and talk to the President ourselves.

 Tweet

Patrick Byrne Follow

A concerned citizen who has been hunting the oligarchy and Deep State since 2004.

The Deep Capture Campaign

198 Replies to “How DJT Lost the White House, November 3 – December 23: All the President’s Team(s)”

Peter Says:

January 28, 2021 at 12:29 am

This is heart breaking to read, i can almost feel your anguish about the real Rudy. I love my grandpa but he’s past his prime. By a lot

Natalie Says:

January 28, 2021 at 7:15 am

I am sick to hear about Rudy and Trumps kids also. The money ! The stop the steal was a steal!

Michael S Blomquist Says:

January 28, 2021 at 8:30 am

What a bunch of whiners, not you Peter, but a reply is best positioned. NWO has been decades in the making. The Great Reset will happen, but we need to [s]elect who will represent America and humanity when it occurs. Clearly this is a much bigger issue than one election. United we Stand.... The first thing we must do is unite the left, right and center and create a call to action – restore hope, provide purpose and direction. There are plenty of activists who we can reach out to, inform and unite. I really don't believe this will be too difficult once people turn off CNN, FOX, MSNBC and other divisive propaganda. This is not just a U.S. issue, but a global issue and should be approached accordingly. There are 7.8 billion of us and at most a couple hundred thousand of them. This could and should go viral in short order for everyone's benefit and protection.

I have been thinking about the proposed site for years. Once the site is up and running with emails, countries, states / etc., zip codes tasks can be assigned to those willing to assist for local, state and federal issues.

We need election integrity, term limits, dark money out of politics – representatives can focus on policies, legislation and enforcement vs campaigning. These are not divisive issues and should be the foundation of any democracy / republic.

Patrick, let me know if you are interested.

Anonymous Says:

January 28, 2021 at 12:32 am

Hi

KG Says:

January 28, 2021 at 1:12 am

Patrick, I hope you consider joining Gab soon where you can speak freely and tell your story. More people need to know this but they don't because they either clueless or deleted their twitter accounts.

Desmond Says:

January 28, 2021 at 1:45 am

Whoa. This is nuts. I feel sick learning about what happened behind the scenes. Sadly, I now understand why it seems we didn't get very far. Thank you for sharing. Thank you for your persistence. Thank you for fighting. I would like to help. How can I help?

SouthernTruthSeeker Says:

January 28, 2021 at 8:22 am

I knew there was no plan about the fraud watching the press conferences with Rudy. The way you described the first meeting with Rudy's team (or non team) was troubling to say the lest. If I didn't know any better, they were intentionally doing just enough to lose. Money, corruption or maybe part of a bigger plan. Trump knows Rudy wasn't the right man for the job. With his lack of knowledge on cybercrime and making every drink an Irish one. This is what Trump is known for. Putting the right people in the right places. So if this intentional fail was part of a bigger plan. It's an extremely darnning plan. Thank you for sharing your experience. Remember GOD WINS!

Bill Worthington Says:

January 28, 2021 at 3:26 am

I almost wish I had not read this. Of course I am but this is nothing short of tragic. Thank you for trying, Patrick, and thank you for the firsthand account here. The big remaining question going forward is how we, as a nation, can make the right changes to insure this kind of fraud never happens again. God help us.

Angie Says:

January 28, 2021 at 12:49 am

This is great, thanks for sharing! You gave away the gender of Mediocrity in there 😊

Bhidgaf Says:

January 28, 2021 at 1:57 am

Jenna Ellis

Anonymous Says:

January 28, 2021 at 3:28 am

My thought exactly.

Anonymous Says:

January 28, 2021 at 6:04 am

Who else would get teary eyed when talked back to usually a female. So yep Jenna Ellis. I always knew she was a snake always said that we are crazy for asking Trump to sign the EO that it was unconstitutional. Thats bullshit cause obviously the constitution was not favoring us at all that you would need to take other paths. Unbelievable they are the ones to blame for everything!!

H Says:

January 28, 2021 at 4:03 am

I don't think "Mediocrity" is Jenna. Her career has been involved in private law firms. Based on the information in the article, we know that Mediocrity had a career in governmental agencies. There was a third female mentioned regularly by the press as being part of the legal team who also had a background working for government agencies (although she received little of the media spotlight).

Jean Says:

January 28, 2021 at 5:37 am

So who is "Mike" of Breaking Bad fame? Any ideas? Perhaps someone we dont know

Anonymous Says:

January 28, 2021 at 6:08 am

Bernie Kerik? He fits that description so well.

Jean Says:

January 28, 2021 at 6:46 am

Wow good catch, a real possibility. Mike was my favorite BB character.

Anonymous Says:

January 28, 2021 at 7:05 am

Bernard Kerik

Patriot Says:

January 28, 2021 at 6:09 am

Boris Epshteyn

Anonymous Says:

January 28, 2021 at 7:01 am

Victoria Toensing

Anonymous Says:

January 28, 2021 at 2:24 am

I know.

Anonymous Says:

January 28, 2021 at 7:09 am

Almost like it was on purpose. This entire article is about manipulation disguised as honesty.

Michael Says:

January 28, 2021 at 7:24 am

I noticed too, it's J. E. lol

George Says:

January 28, 2021 at 1:00 am

Words cannot express the frustration you feel! The levels of incompetence is mind boggling! I figured out mediocrity ... it's too bad he wasn't removed from Trump's ear! Praying for you! Be blessed my friend!

KG Says:

January 28, 2021 at 1:04 am

That's really f'ed up that in the end Trump had little support from the people he trusted the most, Rudy and even his kids...this man is selfless fighting the deep state for the last 4 yrs, but the people around him are only for themselves. He trusted the wrong people, that's really short sighted in my opinion. Despite the clear corruption domestically and interference internationally, Trump still won, but he lost and America is lost because he trusted the wrong people..I'm gonna go cry now. I don't blame him but still wtf. Also made me wonder about all his last minute pardons..another bad move? Bad people whispering in his ears? We'd never know....but tbh I thought he'd know better, couldn't he tell by talking to Rudy everytime he was briefed?? How dysfunctional everything was?

Logan Says:

January 28, 2021 at 1:06 am

Patrick,

You out the gender of the Mediocrity in the paragraph following the Seth Keshel link, 3rd or 4th sentence from the end of that paragraph.

Thank you for documenting your journey, it is very much needed by many.

Anonymous Says:

January 28, 2021 at 2:24 am

I think that was an intentional slip.

Anonymous Says:

January 28, 2021 at 5:36 am

All the detailed focus of this article on the Mediocrity and how unprofessional mediocrity was, sounds very off to me. Like a framing and slander of some sort. All the effort in pretending like Patrick doesn't want to name names but goes out of his way to make sure that the reader can guess with enough certainty who Mediocrity is. And then using the excuse of anonymity to provide excessive detail on the personal stuff that might or might not even be accurate. It just sounds very off.

Renee Van Rhyn Says:

January 28, 2021 at 6:06 am

I want to vomit. I can feel your anguish and frustration on the incompetence of members on the team. Whilst you know what was on the line, our Democracy it pains me that you had to deal with this. I now wonder what Rudy's real motives were and what was Trump thinking?

Anon Says:

January 28, 2021 at 7:11 am

This exactly. This article is manipulation.

Michelle Says:

January 28, 2021 at 6:41 am

My head hurts.

I am beyond furious.

The fact that this Rudy and others handled something this important like they did, i can't even wrap my head around it...

We had to know. I cry every day when i see what the dems have done and are still doing to this country. And then to tirm around and blame us for their bullshit.

Trump won, we won yet here we sit..

And they have, again, gotten away with murder, literally..

I can't thank you enough for putting this out. We were struggling, so many needed to know something, anything but we were thrown to the wolves and left sitting in the dark.

Anonymous Says:

January 28, 2021 at 7:59 am

I saw that. Poor Jenna. And a randy one at that.

Elisabeth Says:

January 28, 2021 at 1:12 am

That makes total sense. I got that sense by watching this from overseas. How frustrating and really, WTF? Great read, Patrick. Can't wait for the next episode.

Anonymous Says:

January 28, 2021 at 1:17 am

Thank you for your work for America. As a bystander, I suspected that their was a riff; that the President was being given bad advice. Please forward thanks to Sidney and your team. You are American treasures...Perhaps I am naive, but I do not believe the illegal Biden Administration will stand. God will deliver America. My prayers go with you, Sidney and your team.

Joel Peralez Says:

January 28, 2021 at 5:28 am

Ultimately, trump bears responsibility for the whole fiasco. Anticipating Patrick's next segment on his White House oval office meeting with trump, trump was informed about what was going on and WHAT HE NEEDED TO DO.

Trump did nothing.

Why? Because he is a coward & a CHARLATAN. I don't know, maybe his family was threatened or maybe trump's puppet masters instructed him to stand down and take a knee. Or, bend over and take it with K-Y Jelly!

Jill Says:

January 28, 2021 at 1:18 am

Oh my god I am completely blown away! I wish the President knew guy were the go to guys earlier. Thank you for your hard work!

Anonymous Says:

January 28, 2021 at 1:20 am

I hope there's a team like this in place for the next election!

Victoria Says:

January 28, 2021 at 1:20 am

Oh God Patrick... I truly feel sick after reading this last excerpt. Our WORST FEARS REALIZED. There is no "plan" unfolding or coming is there? We have truly lost, not just the White House, but the Deep State Demonrats now have the House AND the Senate—no doubt ALL by hook and by crook and Rudy & his shit show let it all slip through. Almost like intentionally!?! 🤔 or just too much of a drunk and too old. But military is not in control, there is no "plan", Even that, I'm beginning to suspect the whole "Q" things was all just a huge Operation Trust psyop by bad actors — foreign or or domestic from the Left, even "dark hats" in our own military. And President Trump was kept in the dark about a lot. I'm surprised to fear the whole 4 years seemed to have been run like that tho...but then, what do I know about DC politics except that it all seems corruption on top of corruption by people who have been in their positions & jobs way too long, addicted to the power, wealth & status & willing to do ANYTHING to keep it....who stopped working for We the People AND our Country a long time ago. I just wanted to believe President Trump really was on top of things, wanted to believe there was this “Q Team” helping him root out and go after all these Deep State Globalist swamp cabal folks for US & our Country. Our FUTURE! Bcz their Agenda 2030 plans for all of the world, all of humanity, is horrific. I wanted to believe that. Now what I’m realizing on this 3rd excerpt is none of that was true...patriots have been cruelly played & misled and all does seem lost at the moment. Unless of course your story turns around.... Either way you do not know HOW GRATEFUL I am that you are sharing it, even if it seems to be confirming my worst fears & what I’ve been sensing for a while now. And I am SO GRATEFUL for ALL OF YALL WHO DID TRY and who all devoted so much time, effort and expense to TRYING to make a difference, to save this election AND root out all the corrupt players in our country & foreign countries involved. Y’all are the true patriotic heroes who were sadly sabotaged it’s sounding like....by the President’s own men/women around &/or near him. How AWFUL is that??? He trusted the wrong ones it’s looking like, in Rudy & this other difficult person. But still, as I await your next excerpt...to see how the story goes, you/y’all do have my undying gratitude and prayers bcz y’all TRIED for US/USA. True Patriots—all of y’all! 🙏

Tada Says:

January 28, 2021 at 2:40 am

Well,

Apart from the fact that you have all been played (and are still being played), one thing we can distill from all this is that Trump was an incompetent President who couldn't organise a knees-up in a brewery

Anonymous Says:

January 28, 2021 at 5:42 am

The very good info for the reference

Jean Says:

January 28, 2021 at 5:50 am

Honestly its kinda a blessing. The Great Reset is upon us, there is no more pretense. Everything we know about the government is a lie. Its a lesson going forward, our uni party is a bunch of crooks who have sold us out to the globalist. The veil had been lifted, their intention is clearly to destroy the West and put us in a technocratic totalitarian one world order. Independent producers are bring destroyed, racial tensions are being stoked and the currency is being obliterated.

In my mind we are ahead of the fools who still think an entire global economy was destroyed to save grandma. The world order is being reorganized , rapidly, and depopulation and gutting of the middle class are on the menu. Time to wake up to the Dark Winter.

Felicia Says:

January 28, 2021 at 2:59 am

Thank you Victoria. I too am crushed. I watched one state hearing after another, I watched Sydney and read everything I could find. I could never understand why it was never received in a manner that made sense, all that we watched, unfold. I do believe our nation is lost. And I am lost in depths of despair.

H Says:

January 28, 2021 at 4:34 am

Felicia,

Please don't be in despair. While it's an extremely difficult situation I think a great many people world wide have woken up to what is going on around them (with still many more to jolted out of their slumber over the coming weeks and months). We can see the injustice you have all suffered in the US with the stolen elections and the maddening policies that the new government is scrambling to put in place. But there's one thing we all have the ability to do, and it's to make choices and take action, no matter how minute, and the united effort together will cause that change that is needed. It might be slow at first but we can start on the local level and influence the immediate environment around us. The way we shop and utilise services can all be made with conscious choices to avoid supporting the companies, corporations and institutes that are trying to destroy 'the right to life, liberty & the pursuit of happiness'. Patrick has pointed out in his article some of the people who have shown true leadership... those who have the ability to get things done. These are the people who need to inspire us. These are the kind of people who we should support. While I understand how disheartening it is to read how much of a chaotic mess was going on in the background it's better that we know the truth. That will allow us to rely less on any external movement or idea that we have any control of and put the fight back to where it should be... with each and every one of us... but working together to keep and fight for our freedoms.

Suzette D Bowker Says:

January 28, 2021 at 3:09 am

Q was never real. It was just a grift that got too big to contain. Many Patriots were taken for lots of money who could ill afford it. FYI Q is Jim Watkins, a pig farmer in the Philippines. He made millions off the Q game. There was never a plan. Nobody has been arrested, but Trump's people. The Swamp is thriving now that they stole the election.

Jean Says:

January 28, 2021 at 5:35 am

Well , let me tell you if we are honest this doesn't speak well of Trump at all. How in the world did he not assure a well managed coordinated professional effort was put forth Its the dang US presidential election, the crime of the centuryif well executed this could have buried the Democrats and exposed our foreign adversaries.

So we must conclude one thing or the other is true:

Trump knew the extent of the fraud and didn't want to aggressively pursue it for whatever reason perhaps not wanting to expose the criminality as it would undermine faith in the country's leadership OR

Trump's abilities as a CEO are wildly inflated and he ran the White House like a shit show and had not the desire or ability to run a competent, complete , professional examination of the voter fraud and foreign election interference. It that's the case, he should stay hidden . He had an obligation not jyst to his supporters but to the Constitution to use every resource available to protect the integrity of the election.

This is truly astounding.

JB Says:

January 28, 2021 at 6:49 am

That's my takeaway as well. Here is the money graf:

Over these weeks there were a number of excellent White House staffers whom I got to know. Smart young men and women in their late twenties, generally. Some (but not all) were huge Trump enthusiasts. They filled me in on details here and there, snippets of what was happening behind the scenes between the campaign, Rudy, and the White House. One evening, once we were close enough, I let down my hair and said, “This is a shit-show. Is this normal?” One of the staffers (and, mind you, a very pro-Trump one) said, “This is it. This is the Trump White House. This is how everything has run for four years.”

Patriotgirl21 Says:

January 28, 2021 at 8:40 am

I absolutely agree with you! Its so disheartening, to say the least.

Peter Says:

January 28, 2021 at 1:22 am

I don't know whether to laugh or cry, and I live in New Zealand. Completely gutted for DJT.

T Says:

January 28, 2021 at 1:23 am

Oh, no. NOT at all what I imagined and certainly not what I wanted to hear. It's going to take a minute to reconnoiter, process, and reconcile. At the risk of being petty, I wish I could get my contribution back. OMG.

JB Says:

January 28, 2021 at 6:44 am

Demand your contribution back NOW. A lot of the Patriots at Patriots.win have successfully clawed back their contributions, esp. to WinRed.com

JB Says:

January 28, 2021 at 6:50 am

ASK FOR IT BACK, DEMAND IT, enlist your credit card company if need be.

Anonymous Says:

January 28, 2021 at 1:23 am

Sounds like a sceney. Make that movie

Tonya Moore Says:

January 28, 2021 at 1:28 am

Holy shit! This changes the way I have viewed things for the past 3 months! Hell, I probably did more research than Giuliani! I have spent every single night researching everything I can, and this man is being paid 100k/week to get sloshed?! I feel so bad for you Patrick, Flynn, and Powell, I really really do!

Jean Says:

January 28, 2021 at 6:00 am

Tonya I feel you, me too. I studied election fraud like it was my job. Really from the beginning when I stayed up into the wee hours of the forth, my geeky charts in hand , updating the swing states as the night progressed until the inexplicable 4am ballot drops. I woke up everyone I knew saying the election is being stolen right before our eyes. At one point long after voting was halted in Pennsylvania, a single ballot drop was recorded, 64k votes for Biden , zero for Trump, not a single vote. The Fox commentators didn't say a word. I really wonder who knows what in the media.

Real Pam Says:

January 28, 2021 at 1:33 am

So who will be playing you in the film?! Beautifully written, Patrick. I had popped a melatonin, ready for bed, and figured I'd read the first couple of paragraphs, finishing the rest tomorrow, expecting a rather dry tale. But it kept me engaged, fleshed out characters, vivid events, I read the whole thing. Well done!

You did 'out' Mediocrity as a woman, though. In the paragraph where she was sending your team to Michigan and you wanted more details. At least I think that happened. Melatonin kicking in so my memory is a bit fuzzy.

I misread a sentence where at first glance I thought you and Gen. Flynn communicated 'telepathically.' Funny!

I look forward to the next bits, even though I know how this (shit) show ends. Sort of like watching "Titanic."

Anonymous Says:

January 28, 2021 at 1:33 am

Trump's only fault was his loyalty.

Truth V Trump Says:

January 28, 2021 at 4:32 am

Loyalty to whom? To a non-elected drunkard? His loyalty should have been to the people.

Bhidgaf Says:

January 28, 2021 at 1:36 am

This is exactly what I was worried about when I was watching it from the outside.

Donald Trump will go down as the worst president in the history of this country. On his watch, the entire US election was blatantly stolen and he was too much of a coward to save it.

I voted both times for him for what he represented: a president selected by the people of the country, not a President selected by Washington DC as an option for the people of the country to vote for.

But his failures are greater than his accomplishments. His greatest failure will be, that on his watch, with the might of the American Military and the Armed Forces, with 79,000,000 supporters, he turned his back on his path of office and allowed a foreign adversary to steal the election from the American People.

I have nothing but contempt for him now. What a coward.

Steve Williams Says:

January 28, 2021 at 2:27 am

100%!

Stormcrow Says:

January 28, 2021 at 3:25 am

This makes me wonder if Trump was in on it, controlled opposition? He clearly had the ammo if he wanted to fire and yet didnt.... they wanted to keep the proof of election fraud given to the public as innocuous as possible. It really was just a show trial. I feel people like you and Flynn and Sidney may have been tricked into pouring your hearts out for a person who may not have 100% honest intentions.

There is a much larger, more organized, and dark game going on above this surface level stuff and I believe we've only gotten glimpses of it.

Bhidgaf Says:

January 28, 2021 at 4:22 am

I don't think so.

Donald Trump took advice from White House counsel instead of The American people fighting for our very country.

When he could have saved us, he realized how much he had to lose, and turned and ran.

He asked us to fight for him as he was packing his things and going back to his life as a narcissistic billionaire.

Donald Trump is a coward.

ZenAnon Says:

January 28, 2021 at 6:18 am

I disagree with your assessment. I don't believe he's a coward, in any sense. If he was, he would have resigned a long time ago. He was/is surrounded by grifters who misguided him. And yes, while he's ultimately the one in charge, the people in his inner circle failed him. Until you've walked in his shoes, you shouldn't judge. Remember, the information he was given, determined his reality. You really have no clue, about the information he was given. No one does, but him.

Regarding Q.. most logically thinking people knew this was some sort of misinfo op that had nuggets of truth sprinkled in to make it seem plausible. But it was an operation with a mission. I believe it had a different purpose and was successful. In my opinion- this operation was designed to build a grass roots Patriot base (pro America) and to spread information. The Q warriors are the anti-propaganda. I think the op was hijacked by anti- Trumppers and more grifters who had hoped to pull them away from Trump and into the treasonous arms of Republicans. The magical thinking like JFK is alive, traitors have all been arrested and are at Gitmo stuff was designed to discredit them in the end. Just my opinion though.

In the end- Trumps inner circle failed him. That's obvious. The question is: what are "we the people" going to do about it? So rather than post negative bullshittery like this, what are you willing to do to help? I'm not advocating any violence or illegal acts. What can we legal do to correct this injustice. They work for us, right? This is still a Republic, right? One thing is for sure... the less people like you in this movement, the better. I don't want you to be beside me in the foxhole, that's for certain. Perhaps you should ring Paul Ryan, Mike Pence, or Mitt Romney and bitch/ moan to them. You can point fingers, mock, blame, and do nothing with them. For the people who are genuinely concerned about saving our country, aren't finished with this story. We still have work to do. So.. step aside.

Anonymous Says:

January 28, 2021 at 7:26 am

Agree!

Bhidgaf Says:

January 28, 2021 at 7:53 am

You're welcome to disagree.

Joe Biden is President of the United States.

Donald Trump knew for a year they were stealing it, and managed only to Tweet.

Donald Trump could have replaced Wray, Barr, Haspel, and all upper management of the agencies. He didn't. That was his failure. After four years, those are HIS agencies, and ultimately HIS failures.

You may disagree, but those are the facts.

Donald Trump tucked his tail, told his supporters to keep up the fight, and took the early flight to Mar a Lago.

He left Sidney, Mike, and Patrick to publicly fight for our republic, and hung them out to dry.

I have nothing but contempt for someone that weak.

I say all of this as someone anonymously commenting on the internet. The irony doesn't escape me.

Syntap Says:

January 28, 2021 at 4:29 am

Well I hate to say it, but while Flynn and Sydney are impressed in a positive light in this story, don't forget that Flynn encouraged people with 'Q' and Sydney with the "It will be biblical" and "release the kraken". She tweeted "Who knew?" along with an article claiming Kraken was a DoD cyberwarfare division monitoring the election. Flynn stated multiple times 10/10 Trump would be stay President. Lindell said something similar. #ItalyDidIt went nowhere? How could they make these statements? I don't know what to believe. I agree this all makes Trump seem like an incompetant wartime President, but what of the people who deliberately fostered the impression that he wasn't?

Sally Says:

January 28, 2021 at 6:07 am

My thoughts exactly!

Sharon A Sarotte Says:

January 28, 2021 at 8:02 am

My thoughts exactly...something doesn't add up. A guy, a democrat, leaves his multi-million dollar corporation, claims he put up over a million dollars of his own money to help Donald Trump. He had made himself out to be the "hero" while L Lin Wood, Sidney and General Flynn are idiots. WHY WOULD HE DO THIS?? WHAT'S HIS GOAL? My gut tells me this is off – there is something driving this beyond his story!

Jean Says:

January 28, 2021 at 6:27 am

I'm with you, clearly a well organized, extremely wealthy group of globalists with multiple spheres of influence are behind what seems to be a reshuffling of the chess pieces at best and a communist takeover of the West at worse. I think they not only stole an election , I think they wanted us to know it was stolen. Surely Patrick can share some insights here and I hope he will.

The piece I am not understanding was Trump's role in organizing a nationalist, America first movement , when the goal is truly the opposite. Was it merely to demoralize, demonize and marginalize Patriots when the movement was crushed? What purpose did it serve? Was it a distraction to burn time and energy when our sole focus should have been to rebel against the covid lock downs? You are correct this is only a piece , a much larger agenda is behind this charade. This is merely the window dressing

Joel Peralez Says:

January 28, 2021 at 5:37 am

Ultimately, trump bears responsibility for the whole fiasco. Anticipating Patrick's next segment on his White House oval office meeting with trump, trump was informed about what was going on and WHAT HE NEEDED TO DO. Trump did nothing.

Why? Because he is a coward & a CHARLATAN. I don't know, maybe his family was threatened or maybe trump's puppet masters instructed him to stand down and take a knee. Or, bend over and take it with K-Y Jelly!

Jean Says:

January 28, 2021 at 6:15 am

Hey, it could be this was his role all along no? If I take more generous stance, perhaps he thought he could free the country, build a true nationalist, America first movement and win, but the swamp proved too deep, the institutions too corrupted. The West seems likely to go down to globalist tyrants. We can be thankful of one thing, the pretense is over, the globalist' veil is lifted, the Great Reset is upon us. Trust no one in government or media, they are duly compromised. There will be no one to save us, its up to us to bond with like minded loyal true friends and forge a path forward. I think building small cohesive self sustaining communities will be the key. The cities are toast, no more than prisons. Its back to the basics. What an amazing time line.

Joseph Edward Paliescheskey Says:

January 28, 2021 at 1:37 am

P

Melanie Says:

January 28, 2021 at 1:38 am

TBH this was so tedious a read, it is a small wonder that no one will listen to you. Sir you seem to be on point with your assessment of the election but PLEASE get yourself an editor to condense your message. I say this with guarded respect. I've followed, promoted and defended you across many platforms, tagging #KrakenSkulls on Parler until that fizzled out. I admire your courage a hell of a lot. I pray for your safety. I truly believe your story but, like the Clinton story...you are going to have to practice some brevity, sugar. Be blessed, be safe and thank you.

Mazie Passeri Says:

January 28, 2021 at 2:56 am

No way.

Patrick, this is a smooth and interesting read. It is obvious that you are pouring your heart and soul into these writings while still managing to get them to the American people quickly. Considering the sense of urgency, publishing without perfection is an act of humility on your part. Thank you. God bless you for that and for your sense of duty. Please keep writing. 🌻

GretchenW Says:

January 28, 2021 at 5:09 am

If Patrick had more time, he would have written a shorter piece. 🤔

Anonymous Says:

January 28, 2021 at 7:13 am

Thank you Patrick for all you have done and will do

JB Says:

January 28, 2021 at 6:53 am

Gotta agree if by “tedious” you mean “riveting” and “edge of the seat.”

Holly Says:

January 28, 2021 at 8:16 am

I actually thought it was a great read. It kept my attention the entire time.

Colleen Says:

January 28, 2021 at 1:47 am

OMG, you make me truly fear for our country. There is no plan, only chaos. There is no leadership, only a bunch of headless chickens running around trying to amass as much wealth as they can before everything goes to shit.

Thank you for your integrity, for having a moral compass, and for engaging in right action instead of sitting paralyzed and hoping someone will save us.

Mazie Passeri Says:

January 28, 2021 at 2:36 am

I love this comment. ❤️

Agnostic Says:

January 28, 2021 at 4:42 am

Yes, good comment Colleen although it should have been written in the past tense. The shit-show has left town and thank you for exposing it for what it was, Patrick. Now let's get together and give the new administration the support it needs to put the pieces back together after 4 years of chaos. To me, as a political agnostic, that is the only patriotic thing to do. Trump blew it. Let's move on. Our country depends upon it and upon our participation in the political process. We can't hide in a corner and lick our wounds for 4 years. Nor would 4 years of conscientious obstruction be in the national interest. Hey, if you can't be with the one you love, then love the one you're with!

JB Says:

January 28, 2021 at 6:54 am

The new administration is pure chaos of a different and more sinister order.

Michael Says:

January 28, 2021 at 7:48 am

You are seriously confused, the shit show is still in charge. In fact the shit show is back to the same shit show that had played for 8 years prior to the last 4. The shit show now has a temporary different puppet head that will soon disappear and then we will have another puppet head like the one that played the part for 8 years that is constitutionally illegitimate. I love the way these communists shove their law breaking in our faces and it goes unchallenged because we have no one willing to stand up and defend the constitution in congress.

Anonymous Says:

January 28, 2021 at 1:48 am

“Again, she [Mediocrity] would answer no questions about where they were going exactly”
lol

also, rudy is sus...

wtf...

Joseph Edward Paliescheskey Says:

January 28, 2021 at 1:53 am

Mr. Patrick,

I read and wanted to continue past December 23. Your recap of the things that took place have me sad to the soul. I think how different it would have been had you been in the ear of our beloved President Trump. My question is with all this chaos taking place why did you not just go public enough to get the President to call you to the White House. You guys were doing all this work, you see it going for not and let it get that far without a public display. Sir, you had it all. You had Michael Flynn. General Flynn could not get a phone call with the President? I believe that could happen within a few hours. Flynn: Mr. President, we have a problem. This election investigation is out of control. First, Rudy is a drunk. Now that I have your attention. Second, AKA Mediocrity is a sabotage. I would like to meet with you along with Patrick Byrne. It's a National Security issue. And Mr. President, You won the election. I believe that would get them an invite into the Oval Office faster than you could spell Mississippi. I can't wait to read the next chapter. However, at this point, if felt so strongly about where you were heading, you had to get to the President one on one. You didn't!
Frustrated in Alabama
I'm a Trumper!

Karen Says:

January 28, 2021 at 1:53 am

Well, we've been led down a path, haven't we? Shocked at the incompetence. Appalled by the RNC. My heart breaks for Sidney and Team. I refuse to believe all this hard work to be in vain. I am going to continue to pray and do my best within my little circle. Praying for you, Patrick. Thank you so much. ❤️

Anonymous Says:

January 28, 2021 at 1:56 am

Patrick, what was suppose to happen or be revealed on Jan 6? Was there even a plan that day? Why was 1/2 America told to be there? Nothing new was revealed. Flynn night before said Trump was 10/10 be President.

Anonymous Says:

January 28, 2021 at 8:17 am

Flynn did say that..but not on Jan 20th. The military is in charge under Trump....just gotta wait it out. Biden is basically pretending...its all tv optics.

SUSAN Says:

January 28, 2021 at 2:00 am

Please do not leave us on a cliff hanger ... please continue on. My hope is fading. My heart goes out to you. I hear and feel your frustration. I sure hope this has a good ending. So many people around the world are counting on Trump and the Military to take over and win back the Country from this horrible fraudulent election and the Deep State. Thank you and your group, including Sidney for all you have done.

Keith DC Says:

January 28, 2021 at 2:02 am

Thank you. I met Rudy a few times in the dust of the WTC pile. A shame how he disregarded you. But not totally surprised and it all makes sense now...

Petronella Kayanan Says:

January 28, 2021 at 2:12 am

Heartbreaking to read. Thank you for your diligence and dedication. I think you would have succeeded had you been given the chance. I am wondering about the President now, and I've been a Trump supporter from the beginning. Trump is supposed to be a very smart man. It seems like he gave up. Apparently he found a better way to protect America from a NWO takeover. One can only hope.

Nina Says:

January 28, 2021 at 2:12 am

I can't wait for the sequel. So did you speak in the end to the Donald Trump ? Did he listen to you and is there still a chance to prove the election fraud on the basis of foreign interference ?

Joel Peralez Says:

January 28, 2021 at 5:50 am

It's OVER now.

T Says:

January 28, 2021 at 2:16 am

Addendum: I would consider editing out the comment about his children. Unnecessary context. Nothing good will come of it.

Anonymous Says:

January 28, 2021 at 3:49 am

People deserve to know the whole truth, including The truth about Trump's children because it is NOT only about him and his family, it is about the fate of the USA!

His daughter and son in law were working in the WH! People need to know.

Thanks!

JB Says:

January 28, 2021 at 6:57 am

There's no way to skate around the Jared Problem, which continues to hang over DJT as he and Ivanka have moved also to Florida and will be Part of the Scenery.

Michael Says:

January 28, 2021 at 2:20 am

Thank you. A truly heartbreaking and maddening account. The president's long relationship with the mayor notwithstanding, I can't understand how somebody else close to him... his daughter or a son... could not have been approached early on and been advised of such facts in order to advise the president that his appointed manager was not managing. I would think President Trump surely would have, at a minimum, sought more information and made a change in Rudy's role. But then, I understand what happened in the next chapter already when you, Sydney and the General tried to do just that, albeit late in the game, revealed by your post meeting tweets which I found hard to believe but now find to have been true. I am so saddened by your account as I am sure the president will read it with extreme regrets. Thank you, I guess.

Mazie Passeri Says:

January 28, 2021 at 2:21 am

Your character is stunning, Patrick Byrne. 🌟 Thank God for you, dear man. Mua! ❤️ 🏆 🇺🇸

Lila Rajiva Says:

January 28, 2021 at 2:21 am

Well, that was unpleasant to read.

Not surprised about Giuliani at all.

Fortunately, I'm too much of a cynic to ever send a dime in to a politician.

DJT, like many rich powerful men, is surrounded by people who are clownish, corrupt, fawning, and back stabbing... some all at the same time....and yet he trusts them...

And probably distrusts the one or two who are competent and loyal. I've seen this movie before.

Truth V Trump Says:

January 28, 2021 at 4:30 am

He trusts them because he can see something, perhaps a lot, of himself in each and every one of them. Let's face it, the guy is an intimidating bully and the only people who will last in his nasty little orbit are those with the qualities you so eloquently describe. Maybe it's time to wake up. Maybe Trump himself was a lie all along. People here are prepared to condemn everything revealed in this piece of writing EXCEPT the President himself. HEY, WAS ELECTED TO LEAD. And yet he showed, without a shadow of doubt, that he doesn't have what it takes to lead. I also suspect he had a deal with Rudy that Rudy's ill-gotten 'pay packet' be split once DJT is no longer in office. Or why else would he have sat back like some sort of helpless, clueless nincompoop letting non-elected, unpaid minions do the hard work and listening only to a drunkard who he should have been able to recognise was way out of his depth? If we are looking for conspiracies, or at least things that smell like skunk, I reckon this relationship needs investigating (Patrick, are you listening?). As for Ivanka and Jared, is anyone surprised? Rest assured, though, the ornamental Ivanka will garner many millions of well-intentioned, ill-informed, votes should she seek to run for office in 2024 or beyond. And for those who saw fit to donate to the 'Stop the Steal' campaign, I can only say 'Duh'. Fools and their money are easily parted. Maybe buy shares in a whisky distillery? The buck stop with Trump (double entendre intended). The election MAY have been stolen, that money definitely WAS stolen Any outrage here?

That Trump did not call in the National Guard to have a re-count of votes in the counties in question is simply a crime. As I say, let's investigate the relationship with Rudi. Now much of the broken United States is left to wallow in doubt and suspicion. That has to be laid fairly and squarely at Trump's feet. Everyone has the right to seek the truth. Trump had the key and chose not to use it. Perhaps this is the outcome he was looking for – a chance to get back to his businesses and the golf course while never having to say 'I lost' but rather 'it was stolen'. Perhaps that was The Plan everyone has been so desperately seeking. Patrick's piece confirms Trump's office was a 'shit-show' for 4 years. Was that any way to run a country? I understand that Patrick and his team want to uncover the truth about what happened in those counties. That's a constitutional issue - 'free and fair elections'. It's just a pity the guy in question is a nasty incompetent who 'grabs women by the pussy' and mercilessly mocked a disabled reporter on the campaign trail in 2015 (that still brings tears to my eyes, not only because I have a seriously disabled child myself). Hardly the behaviour of a statesman. Anyway, in not signing an order to have those counties reexamined, a simple flick of the pen, he has delivered the incoming administration what could be 4 years of internal warfare and has left a very, very large number of people frustrated, angry and, in some cases, rebellious. What a great outcome for 'We the People'. Although I know it takes a massive shift in mindset, I frankly think it's time we started to hold Donald J. Trump accountable for his inaction.

Lila Rajiva Says:

January 28, 2021 at 5:46 am

I think a lot of the bad press about Trump is just that, bad press. Wonder why any one person should be so hounded? The obvious answer is he gets in the way. So although I thought Trump was a Trojan horse in 2016, I don't think so today. I think it is a much more complex situation than that. I don't buy that Trump accomplished nothing. Just the rhetorical assault on the media and the creation of a huge following of people fully aware of the evil nature of the ruling cabal is an achievement worthy of memorializing and outlives any political office. He did move Jerusalem [didn't agree with it] and played hardball with Iran and China, didn't wage wars....and much else. Those who built him up too much are now tearing him down too fast. At that level everyone is compromised, and even those who are not are pinned in at every turn by the swamp. No single person can act like Superman. And the election story is far from over.

Ika Says:

January 28, 2021 at 2:23 am

Thank you for sharing the story. It is making me feel more relieved than sad. I now understand better why you said you wanted to squeeze the shoulders of the President at the oval office in an instant, because you wanted to scold him but also cry with him...

I don't blame Mayor Giuliani, which I know you will not, either. He got way too much on his shoulders to deal with. He not only had to defend one man, the President, who had been viciously attacked and smeared by the ruling class and half of the country for four years on a daily basis, and had a landslide election win stolen in front of him, he also had our country's fate at stake. He already saved it twice, the New York Mafias, and the 9/11, and it simply was too much to ask him to save it the third time at the age of 76. I feel sorry, but I am relieved that you were there both as a team member and a witness, intelligent, honest, and kind-hearted. It's a blessing to be able to read something like this after everything that has taken place. I'm not going to blame anyone for where our country stands today; it is just fate, or better, history that is inescapable.

JB Says:

January 28, 2021 at 6:59 am

I do blame Giuliani who failed bigly when he needed to step up. He seems to have been in it for the money and the drunken restaurant jaunts.

SUSAN Says:

January 28, 2021 at 2:26 am

Ok Patrick: I am trying to find some hope after reading your article. My heart is very heavy. Is our glimmer of hope ... the information about Italy, the Vatican, the Vatican Bank money being taken to the US and so much more. Is that all a fabricated lie also, just like the Q story? I just am having a really hard time believing our President ... Trump ... and our Military ... would hand our great Country over to Communism. I mean really? Please don't leave us hanging on the cliff.

Lila Rajiva Says:

January 28, 2021 at 3:01 am

Italygate is not fabricated. Too much context supporting it. Things are not over. Just got harder. Plenty of legal manoeuvres remaining. Q is most likely a benign psyop intended to spread awareness. I don't get cointelpro at all.

Biden/Harris can and should be removed and the winner installed.
Just needs someone with will and savvy.
Dr. Byrne is very disarming in his frankness, the keyword being disARMING.

Jim Zarbaugh Says:

January 28, 2021 at 2:27 am

This is heartbreaking- and so difficult to understand. The President knew that voter fraud was going to be an issue. I can only imagine he signed the Executive Order against foreign interference for a reason and truly felt like he might need to use it one day. He placed Ezra Cohen-Watnick and Chris Miller in strategic places after the election. He had the report delivered that proved there was foreign interference.

President Trump never seemed to be worried about what the Democrats thought of him. He loves to win. It would seem to me that Flynn's plan would have given him the opportunity to save America and the vote – and possibly win. His fight would have gone down in history books as one of the biggest wins for a President ever. I do not see the downside and I can't understand his hesitancy.

President Trump knew about Q. He even seemed to tweet on command a few times to prove he and Q were communicating. What was that all about? Why would he not spare his supporters all the pain and disappointment by denouncing the Q drops if they weren't true?

So many questions remain unanswered. Not to mention that something is clearly not right with the new administration. It is almost like they are performing in an elementary school play and have forgotten their lines. It all seems so surreal.

Thank you for all of this. We the people really need to hear what happened.

Dan Earley Says:

January 28, 2021 at 2:31 am

Wow, Patrick, this tops the Robert Brazell story we discussed in your office a few years ago. You may recall me including that one in a college course — well, this has at least as many valuable lessons. I look forward to the polished total compilation when you catch your breath down the road. Meanwhile, my prayers are with you. Stay safe!

Anonymous Says:

January 28, 2021 at 2:36 am

Is 'The Mediocrity' Jenna Ellis?

If 'no' say "no".

If 'yes' say nothing.

Nichole Says:

January 28, 2021 at 2:36 am

I have been following everything that has happened with the election steal. I had asked if anyone had heard what was happening with you and I was referred to your site. I read all of what you wrote and we are so damn blessed to have you fight for voter integrity. I am feeling hopeless with the possibility of the end of this story. I want to know what if anything is going to happen? Has Sidney, Flynn and Trump thrown in the towel? Is there hope to expose the fraud? What happened to the all the lawsuits?

MICHAEL Says:

January 28, 2021 at 8:03 am

PERHAPS YOU SHOULD LOOK AT MICHIGAN AND GEORGIA

Anonymous Says:

January 28, 2021 at 2:38 am

I agree...this is heartbreaking. Is anything still happening? Did everyone give up? Anything we can do?

Lily Miro Says:

January 28, 2021 at 2:45 am

This was heartbreaking to read. The other side made no mistakes, they stole the election with precision, with months of planning and had everything in place for the steal on Nov 3&4. However, knowing that Trump definitely won the election, is there any chance that this fraud might still be exposed? For example if they can prove that Arizona was won by Trump? You can't have an illegitimate president that wasn't chosen by the people in the White House! Surely something can still be done. Give us some hope Patrick.

Lila Rajiva Says:

January 28, 2021 at 3:54 am

No, they did not.

They way overestimated what they needed to win.

Then they committed blatant treasonous fraud out of desperation.

As for this story, yes, on one level, most of it is believable.

But this is not a soap opera. It is information war and no one can be transparent.

Deep politics is full of head fakes, feints, red herrings, traps, diversions. Take that as you will. PB knows what to say in a public forum when his team faces a major defamation lawsuit.

Rose Says:

January 28, 2021 at 4:27 am

I was actually thinking along those lines.... Interesting. Thank you.

JB Says:

January 28, 2021 at 7:12 am

Underestimated?

Lila Rajiva Says:

January 28, 2021 at 8:21 am

Sorry, yes. Underestimated.

Bhidgaf Says:

January 28, 2021 at 4:26 am

There were and are mistakes all over the place. Obvious and easily found ones.

The problem was the incompetence and cowardice of Donald Trump to go after them beyond lip service.

Joe Says:

January 28, 2021 at 2:46 am

Mr. Byrne,

Thank you wholeheartedly for the ring side seat to the 2nd greatest story ever told... you & crew are all HERO's.

Hard to believe these days there are truly good guys, like you and your associates, willing to risk it all, just so WE THE PEOPLE can hear the truth about the current State of our Union. God bless America.

May life's journey continue to show you peace, safety and happiness.

Thank you!

Anonymous Says:

January 28, 2021 at 2:51 am

F

Suzette D Bowker Says:

January 28, 2021 at 2:51 am

Wow. I had no idea that Trumps own lawyers were slow rolling the clock. This whole thing could have been stopped had Rudy not been in charge. I wonder who was the Mediocrity. I know that Jovan Hutton Pulitzer is still working on scanning the ballots. Those are public property and his program will tell 100% if they fraudulent. The States are stonewalling those also. Nobody will let him get near the ballots.

This whole situation makes me ill. To think that Trump won in a landslide & his own people dropped the ball. Now our country & it's citizens will pay a horrible price due to ineptitude.

Thank you Patrick for letting us know the truth. Bless you.

Marshal Wehner Says:

January 28, 2021 at 2:53 am

Wow, what a shit show indeed! You have more patience than I do that's for sure. I'm sorry to hear this is what you and your team were up against from the beginning. I always wondered how Rudy had the time for his stupid podcast. I remember saying to myself back then "Rudy don't you have a country to be fighting for". Stupid drunks! Keep up the good fight and I appreciate everything you and the team are doing. God bless you all!!

GadgetGirl Says:

January 28, 2021 at 2:53 am

Thank you Patrick for posting these in rough draft form. As a writer myself, I would find it difficult to do that in a public forum. I appreciate the information and your candidness. I am left pondering though, where do we go from here? How do we rescue our country after all this chaos, hubris, and selfishness?

Anonymous Says:

January 28, 2021 at 2:59 am

I remember hearing Mike Moore from True Pundit saying, lawyers he was in touch with in November were baffled at the lawsuits that were filed, just weak and pathetic and he was unsure what the strategy was. It certainly didn't look good. How absolutely nauseating. What the hell? Makes no sense at all. There certainly wasn't a plan.

Mike Says:

January 28, 2021 at 3:01 am

Patrick,
First, let me thank you for confirming the impressions that We The People have of you, your team, Sidney, General Flynn and Jovan. In these times of misinformation, disinformation and no information, it is comforting to know We have you as a resource for a no-nonsense account. As a fellow Irishman, I feel your pain. I know reliving that experience has your blood up, again. So, thank you. I was able to catch an interview you had done within the past few weeks, at the early stages of your bout with COVID. In that interview, you gave the impression that there was still a path out of this mess. I am not one to pick up a book, read the first few chapters and immediately skip to the end. But, my interest is less about the intricacies of the playbook than the morale of the team leading the charge. Are you as confident today as you were, then? I think we all are anticipating a fairy tale ending to this travesty. Yet, I won't ask if we should still hold out hope! Hope is what you do when everything else fails; I do not want this country to find itself in that position. Please keep up the good work and stay in the fight; may your antibodies be bountiful.

Peace

Anonymous Says:

January 28, 2021 at 3:01 am

Thank you Patrick Byrne for stepping up and fighting for Trump and our country. Ignore the trolls, I thought we left them behind on Twitter and Facebook.

Jim Zarbaugh Says:

January 28, 2021 at 3:04 am

I am heartbroken and shocked. President Trump signed the Executive Order on Foreign Election Interference for a reason, right? Didn't he plan on using it if he had to? And why did he place Ezra Cohen-Warnick and Chris White into such important, strategic positions after the election? As a President who loves to win, it makes no sense that he would choose not to go down in history as the one who fought voter fraud and won. And why not disavow Q if he felt the drops were spreading disinformation that would ultimately hurt his supporters?

So many questions left. Thank you so much for sharing your story with us.

Felicia Weston Says:

January 28, 2021 at 3:19 am

Patrick, as much as your writing to let us hear the truth, the comments and written replies are equal to the deep emotional investment you have had in this. I know I am not alone in this. We who so believe in this man who made us every day love our country more than we ever had. I can not describe how painful it is to listen to the media this past week let alone anything from the new administration. It simply defies logic. Even other countries such as Australia are in disbelief as to the insanity of these ridiculous EO's along with the individuals that have been chosen for his appointments. I am at a loss.

Beot Says:

January 28, 2021 at 8:36 am

comments don't always work

Mark Says:

January 28, 2021 at 3:23 am

So,, you mean, no contact with Trump by You, Sidney, Mike Flynn or Mike Lindell since the WH Meeting??

Trump has not contacted ANY OF YOU?? Hmm..

No details from That meeting Forward?

Has anyone confirmed Trump is still in Mar Largo? (seems that would tell us a good bit)

Was it 100% clear to Trump In the WH Meeting, that we have the proof?

Does he have that Evidence??

Did we get what we needed from Italy, and is Trump aware of that?

A few more answers for me to be able to make up my mind.. At least without waiting a few more weeks..

G. Says:

January 28, 2021 at 3:26 am

If you didn't figure it out yet. We live in a Monty Python matrix simulation with a groundhog day variant twist.

I'm German but love and live in Texas. I can just shake my head about how things are getting "organized" in the US. I could fill libraries with my experience. Beginning with rental car operations lol.

What you described sounds very familiar. You didn't expect anything else, did you?

Still I love America. Texas, for the most part. With my wonderful wife born here.

Please Patrick, if you mind sir: did all y'all wear those funny diapers over your faces while conversing? Or just some and who? Lol.

So what are we going to do about the Glozis taking over the planet? Waiting for the Goolag train tickets or doing something to stop it?

I mean in terms of months and not decades or centuries. Wink wink.

Apparently the government is already 120% compromised.

Jean Says:

January 28, 2021 at 7:10 am

Well being that they are building covid "dissident" camps in of all places Dresden, I'd say we are pretty much screwed.

Enjoy every day wth knows when the hammer comes down. I don't sed what can stop it, but I'm open to ideas. I'm not sure if there is anywhere to run to. Monty Python was fun, this is a nitemare. But it sure ain't boring

Eva Blau Says:

January 28, 2021 at 8:07 am

Sehr geehrter G Did you not read Patrick's piece outlining the close shave he had with death thanks to Corona? Bloody Querdenker.

Anonymous Says:

January 28, 2021 at 3:26 am

Dear Mr. Patrick

Like many – we're all so GRATEFUL for all your great efforts helping President's team together with Gen. Flynn & Atty. Sidney Powell.

It's HEART-BREAKING to know that the president had the wrong team who would be able to STOP THE STEAL. I'm sure if you, Gen. Flynn & Atty. Sidney Powell were able to get near him – no doubt that the steal would had been stopped.

It was very frustrating and disappointing indeed and again, thank you for all the things you did & Gen. Flynn & Atty. Sidney – truly appreciated.

Danielle Says:

January 28, 2021 at 3:32 am

I can't say that I'm surprised hearing this about Rudy. I saw that press conference live where he was sweating so much, his hair dye was pouring down the sides of his face. He was probably experiencing alcohol withdrawal at the time. It was embarrassing to see. Rudy was the greatest Mayor in the world on 9/11, during the worst attack on our country in my lifetime. I understand why he turned to booze after that, having lost so many friends & colleagues, not to mention witnessing the horrors of that day; but that's no excuse if you're currently leading the President of the USA's legal team now. Why didn't anyone tell President Trump what a shit-show most of his defense team was, especially Rudy? During that time, whenever Rudy appeared on Fox, I would cringe. It was obvious something was "off" about him. He'd be wearing eyeglasses & then rip them off as soon as he realized he was on camera. He was repetitive, while waving a bunch of papers (affidavits) around. Having worked in the private sector myself in Manhattan for 30 yrs., these people would have been escorted out of the building by security within minutes. Trump should have fired every single Obama appointee from day 1 & filled those positions with his own top-notch executives from the Trump organization. He's a business man, not a politician. He was being ill-advised by swamp creatures who were content with the status quo & wanted him gone. I've heard he was being insulated by his own staff, who wouldn't let people get anywhere near him. We The People voted him in to "drain the swamp," & he did an amazing job against all odds. Now it appears we're screwed, just like Trump was. Fortunately, we never had to go through the hell he did, constantly being attacked from every angle by those he trusted most. To hear that he was undermined by his own children is heartbreaking. We lost our champion. Right now, it's in God's hands, so all we can do is pray for His grace & a miracle. Thank you for your insight into this debacle, Patrick. I just wish this was a draft for a fictional book you were working on. God bless you.

Concerned But Unwavering Says:

January 28, 2021 at 3:33 am

Thank you, Patrick. Looking forward to hearing more and seeing where your, Sidney, Mike, and the Bad News Bears efforts take us.

Tell us (the people) directly what needs to occur and we will do it.

J Says:

January 28, 2021 at 3:33 am

Thank you.

Roger Rigby Says:

January 28, 2021 at 5:12 am

Hard to read. But not a surprise to someone following all the stuff closely. The Swamp and the Snakes notwithstanding, it is also consistent with what I suspect about DJT and his family and some reputed powerful allies: while our best and perhaps only hope to MAGA, it's been an inept amateur hour for possibly several years. It achieved some progress largely on the steam of People Power insistent that good guys win and bad guys be damned, but basically was a little engine that couldn't... and despite best efforts of able Patriots like yourself, is probably irretrievably derailed. SIGH.

Kevin West Says:

January 28, 2021 at 3:46 am

Thank you for filling us in on the TRUTH, Patrick! This has to be the saddest chain of events that I could have ever imagined happening around a man like Donald Trump who was moving our great Country forward no matter what happened around him. One has to wonder how he could be so smart and yet so naive as to the motivations of these horrible people surrounding him.

Please tell us that there is a plan that is still moving forward with people like yourself, General Flynn, and Sidney Powell running the show! As everyday Americans, how can we help?

Kevin Morgan Says:

January 28, 2021 at 7:38 am

Exactly.

Lee Says:

January 28, 2021 at 3:52 am

Mr Byrne, your heroic efforts are very much appreciated.

What you describe makes perfect sense and confirms my worst fears.

Paul Says:

January 28, 2021 at 3:52 am

This is a very interesting story, but some of your references (e.g. Dr. Shiva, Jovan Pulitzer, Benford's law) detract from it.

Anonymous Says:

January 28, 2021 at 3:56 am

Will Sidney get a hearing in court? Maybe your team will be the one that finally save the republic.

Carol Says:

January 28, 2021 at 3:57 am

I pray this battle isn't over.

Anntp Says:

January 28, 2021 at 4:11 am

WHOA! Thanks for tying up so much of the pertinent information that's been dribbling out especially since I live in one of the disputed counties and knew at 1030pm election night that something was greatly amiss. Now, I feel like I can more readily speak to what happened that fateful day! Thank you!

Jansen Says:

January 28, 2021 at 4:42 am

This explains what happens, but I am still amazed HOW it could happen. How can such amazing incompetence in the inner circle of power be allowed to happen?

After the election, it was clear for everyone with a minimum of intelligence that fraud, cheating and corruption had happened. I tried to keep myself updated on a daily basis, and was just waiting for the big bomb to go off. None of that ever happened. The Kraken that would tear the facade down never showed up. And I was amazed, and very frustrated. Why didn't Trump use his power? Why did nothing happen?

What we are seeing here is a system in a big crisis. The democrats seems to have gotten away with their steal, but that was only possible because of the mess inside the white house. If it is possible to fix this, preventing election steal is not enough. Something must also be done to prevent incompetence to take charge in the white house ever again.

John Boksic Says:

January 28, 2021 at 4:44 am

Pam bondi?

JB Says:

January 28, 2021 at 7:20 am

Maybe.

“who had once made a career at one of the better-known government agencies”

Not sure if Florida AG jibes with the above snippet.

Susan Says:

January 28, 2021 at 4:47 am

Discernment should be at play here. Trust yourself. Play out the story that has just been told and think.

Nancy Says:

January 28, 2021 at 4:49 am

Wow That's a LOT of I 's good lord..

Thank you for all your time that went in to this. That was one heck of a read. Hope to never be on your bad side.

Nancy

Anonymous Says:

January 28, 2021 at 4:52 am

Can we still make comments?

Kyle Says:

January 28, 2021 at 4:53 am

Fascinating read, thank you!!! I do recall a brief message that you posted a week or two before the inauguration 🤔. You said you didn't expect SOMETHING would've happened and DID at your White House meeting on Sunday January 10th on Telegram???? You said you would reveal it after the 20th and just eluded to it at the end of this piece. You're killing me Patrick 😊. Be like Paul Harvey and give me the Rest Of The Story!!!

Todd Says:

January 28, 2021 at 5:03 am

Patrick, thank you for devoting so much time to this effort. I can't imagine the frustration you must feel, albeit, one doesn't have to read between the lines. I'm not sure you will ever read this but I wanted to share it with you. First of all, so that you know I am not a flake, you can check out my company and while I'm just a small business, I have educational credentials and have personal relationships with some top political leaders of my state. Nevertheless, I want to share a story with you. I have a friend who has been a deep cover operative for one of the three letter agencies for over twenty years. Most recently, and his last mission before retiring three months ago, he intercepted a very large illegal arms deal that involved selling to a certain Islamic terrorist group (it happened right here, on our shores, involving a group many of us have heard of in the media most recently). He was having a conversation with one of my closest friends about his retirement. This operative has traveled all over the world to stop major terrorist events. In this conversation with my friend, this retired operative told him that he has long known that someone or some entity has been controlling every aspect of our government for decades and that he could never figure it out, but knew instinctively that it had to be organized. In a nutshell, he told my friend that no one will ever be able to get to these controllers, so he just did his job the best he knew how and returned home after each mission. In other words, he felt like the corruption and puppet mastery would never be brought to light. I hope this is not true and I certainly hope you keep trying to bring these corrupt people out of the shadows. Thank you.

Rosie Says:

January 28, 2021 at 5:05 am

I wonder why you haven't been sharing all this with the public as they were happening at the time through twitter to use the pressure of the public opinion for getting things forward.

Bing Says:

January 28, 2021 at 5:15 am

Yeah this makes sense. Complete shit show from Rudy, Boris, and Jenna. Failures.

Anonymous Says:

January 28, 2021 at 5:21 am

Ultimately, trump bears responsibility for the whole fiasco. Anticipating Patrick's next segment on his White House oval office meeting with trump, trump was informed about what was going on and WHAT HE NEEDED TO DO.

Trump did nothing.

Why? Because he is a coward & a CHARLATAN. I don't know, maybe his family was threatened or maybe trump's puppet masters instructed him to stand down and take a knee. Or, bend over and take it with K-Y Jelly!

Anonymous Says:

January 28, 2021 at 6:22 am

You're one of the "Fly By Night" Trump supporters who fail to comprehend the purpose of President Trump's presidency. I'd never want to be in the foxhole with you.. a negative quitter.

Truth V Trump Says:

January 28, 2021 at 7:42 am

Insults are easy. Why don't you give us your explanation for Trump's intransigence. He abandoned us. And why was he on the phone to Georgia demanding more votes be found when he had the solution in front of him? Stinks of skunk, or abject stupidity.

Anonymous Says:

January 28, 2021 at 7:54 am

99kokmkl

Anonymous Says:

January 28, 2021 at 5:25 am

I feel like this story is actually incomplete....you've outlined your view and experience of the incompetence of specific characters and operations; but have not provided an "ending" to this story. When you say "Mike, Sidney, and I decided it was time to take a chance. With no invitation, by hook or by crook, we were going to Jedi-mind-trick our way into the White House, get to the Oval Office, and talk to the President ourselves", nothing follows. It seems very strange to me that Mike Flynn (who Trump is supposedly considering for his VP) and Sydney Powell who have meetings with Trump, have not informed him of these goings on.

Terry S Howard Says:

January 28, 2021 at 5:26 am

The whole 'You're Fired' Trump quote is beginning to look more like a used car tire sitting by the side of a road, ignored, over-driven & now just a useless piece of worthless rubber.....egads!

Petronella Says:

January 28, 2021 at 5:28 am

Heartbreaking to read. Thank you for your diligence and dedication. I think you would have succeeded had you been given the chance. I am wondering about the President now, and I've been a Trump supporter from the beginning. Trump is supposed to be a very smart man. It seems like he gave up. Apparently he found a better way to protect America from a NWO takeover. One can only hope.

James Says:

January 28, 2021 at 5:50 am

I sort of knew I might be kidding myself about "white hats" when 1) Trump pushed an untested vaccine on the population, which shows willingness to commit genocide and he went along with the lock-downs. 2) Giuliani was involved – and he is a 911 co-conspirator. I am surprised that Patrick thinks 911 was legit.

At this point, I think Trump was hired as an actor to play the 'people's president' and give great hope to the patriots – but only to draw them out to be surrounded with enemies and directly in the cross-hairs to achieve their genocide. For this reason, Trump is the worst president in history.

Anonymous Says:

January 28, 2021 at 8:02 am

Yes. Classic Communist Honey-pot

Elizabeth Says:

January 28, 2021 at 5:51 am

This all makes more sense to me now. I am in Michigan and watched the hearing that Rudy led. I thought he did a poor job. I also saw the speech where he was sweating profusely and wondered why he never let Sidney talk. I assumed it was his ego and that she would overshadow him. God bless you, Patrick.

JG Says:

January 28, 2021 at 5:59 am

Your frustration was the frustration of many as the clock was running out. Thank you for stepping into the fray. The ingenuity and resolve of you and your investigative team is a great service to Americans who do not want to see our nation simply succumb to the steal. God bless each of you. .

Janet Says:

January 28, 2021 at 6:01 am

Patrick you are a gifted word smith. Your essay was the honey helping the medicine go down. I'm heartbroken for my President, for my country, and for the men and women who left it all on the battlefield for him. I was praying for God's mercy knowing America deserved judgement. Even the most devout citizens have allowed our institutions to turn our children's faces away from God (myself included). I take comfort in the fact we have people of genius such as yourself and Ms. Powell fighting for our Constitutional rights. My broken heart has taken away my ability to look very far into the future, but experience has taught me time will heal my wounds. For now, I concentrate on the kingdom of God and my place in the Body of Christ. MAGA has been pushed to the corners of my heart. Thank you Patrick Byrne. God Bless.

Sally Says:

January 28, 2021 at 6:04 am

Please let us know how we can help to further the cause of proving the election was stolen. Also, we must stop this from happening again. We must get organized . The election thieves were organized from top to bottom and kept it hidden. Now people are dreaming of some kind of miracle. We want to save our country. What can we do?

James Says:

January 28, 2021 at 6:29 am

the only thing that would save us is 1) rescue by aliens 2) the earth pounded by asteroids or some other catastrophe that scatters the nest of demons ruling us. The govt is wholly corrupt and the people – half are corrupt and most of the rest are too stupid. You can judge the % of conscious beings remaining on the earth by the split of how many wear masks vs not.

Jean Says:

January 28, 2021 at 6:53 am

Harsh but accurate I'm afraid. Time to prepare as best with can with true like minded people and try to be ad self sustaining ad possible. Get the Hell put of the ever more toxic cities and enjoy even day cause wth really knows hoe many more we will have. Great Reset comes with great big ovens , count on it.

James Says:

January 28, 2021 at 6:08 am

I began to suspect P Byrne when he named Warren Buffet as his “rabbi”. Buffet is globalist satanist and gave 3 billion to promote abortions globally – so he is on board with depopulation agenda. Perhaps Byrne’s role in all this was to help expose the evil – but not for the good of the patriots. Just as the cabal agitated the left protestors in 2020 – Byrne helped them agitate patriots for 2021 – and also lead them out on to a ledge and leave them there – they are now clearly the targets.

Jeff V Says:

January 28, 2021 at 6:15 am

I'm with you Mark. This brings up more questions than answers. I believe Patrick is sharing truth, but I also feel there are missing pieces intentionally not being shared (and I trust his intentions and reasons for this). This story has an overall tone of “we had a plan, but other people screwed it up, oh well”. Anyone with integrity wouldn't be able to live with themselves if there wasn't still a plan underway to fight for truth. I can wait for the full plan to be revealed, but I would just like to see Patrick acknowledge that there is a plan. The plan must accomplish these two goals: 1) Publicly reveal the complete truth and 2) Serve justice. These are righteous, honorable goals, based in God's word, and He will accomplish these, in His timing, using His obedient servants. Thank you Patrick for your obedient service to God and to our country.

Anderson Says:

January 28, 2021 at 6:25 am

Wow.... Just wow. Thank you for the incredible work you have put into making our country what it needs to be, and writing these incredibly detailed accounts to scratch the itches of curiosity that are driving millions of us crazy – as nothing we were seeing was making sense. Who does all of this chaos serve? It truly feels like an epic battle of good vs evil. Your efforts and sacrifices are painful and appreciated beyond words. So frustrating, and such a sad, sad, sad state of affairs. Who would have guessed that the only transparency we would see came from a volunteer patriot – thank God for you. You are also a beautiful writer.

PACJersey Says:

January 28, 2021 at 6:25 am

I just assumed precautions were in place before the election knowing there was going to be cheating and fraud. Everyone knew it. So I along with the rest of us just assumed President Trump was too smart to let it happen without safeguards in place.

I kept waiting for the bomb to drop. Then when Rudy was split from Sydney, I kind of scratched my head and thought there must be some bigger strategy at play.

So I am disheartened that it really was a shit show and one hand wouldn't listen to the other. This should have been a mission through technology and Dominion. The fact that nobody could get to President Trump but Rudy is alarming.

Annette Says:

January 28, 2021 at 6:27 am

Thanks for that...a lot of us out here thought something like this was taking place...best wishes to you on your “coaching” career and to your merry band of rascals 😊

Pam Says:

January 28, 2021 at 6:37 am

This is a fascinating read but would it surprise you to hear that I never imagined the whole thing was run any better than this? The only real shock to me has been the bad quality of the interface between teams and the President. We know now it all has in fact been a Chinese psy-op bearing down on our nation, complicated by the CCP virus which numerous of those mentioned here, like Rudy, had suffered from recently yet they still had to work and to perform in state legislative hearings, courtrooms and before the press. But the levels of frustration you’ve experienced, Patrick, do come through loud and clear and I hope it in some way eventually it turns out to have been worth the effort.

Ruth Says:

January 28, 2021 at 6:38 am

So many deep state including big time lawyers, I read Joel Skousen and World Affairs Brief, he seems knowledgeable and straight shooting.

Brenda Says:

January 28, 2021 at 6:38 am

I can only say, wow!

Michelle Says:

January 28, 2021 at 6:45 am

Thank you for sharing. The whole thing feels surreal. I couldn’t believe Trump gave up and walked away. He trusted too much in Rudy as much as we did. Our heart breaks.

GretchenW Says:

January 28, 2021 at 6:50 am

Reading this, those months after the election finally make sense. Am reminded of Ted Cruz being asked during an early November interview, “Does Trump have the right legal team in place to fight this fraud?” Cruz sighed before answering that he wasn’t sure the legal team was up to the task, but there were a few top lawyers involved. I still believe that Trump has great political instincts and tapped into the hopes and concerns of a broad swath of the electorate, but always worried that a guy used calling all the shots in his previous businesses would struggle working with his cabinet, advisors, and Congress. Rudy made me nervous every time he gave a live interview. Trump knew that this fraud was likely, and should have put measures in place to ensure it couldn’t happen. Florida did it, after many years of fishy elections. But I guess federalism would have something to say about that. Oddly enough, reading this gives me some closure about the whole election debacle.

JB Says:

January 28, 2021 at 7:25 am

Very well stated, both the Cruz anecdote and the closure.

Anonymous Says:

January 28, 2021 at 7:05 am

Quickly everyone turns on the president

Anonymous Says:

January 28, 2021 at 7:15 am

I think the President let his loyalty to a friend get the best out of him. I wish He will give the two team same power to fight the election fraud. I thought Mayor team was just running the time and yes Podcast was bothersome. I believe in your team with Sidney Power and General Flynn. Btw,I though Mediocrity was part of a deep state.

Anonymous J Says:

January 28, 2021 at 7:16 am

I think the President let his loyalty to a friend get the best out of him. I wish He will give the two team same power to fight the election fraud. I thought Mayor team was just running the time and yes Podcast was bothersome. I believe in your team with Sidney Power and General Flynn. Btw,I though Mediocrity was part of a deep state.

Brittney Says:

January 28, 2021 at 7:28 am

Patrick,

I love your writing! You are doing an amazing job. I know not all stories get a HEA but I'm choosing to have faith that maybe one day this one will. Thank you for telling us your story!

B

Michael Says:

January 28, 2021 at 7:32 am

All I know is that I have no reason to believe the Mediocrity is not Jenna Ellis.

She was always super smug and cocky during interviews and having pointless Twitter feuds instead of doing her job.

Anonymous Says:

January 28, 2021 at 7:32 am

Pam Bondi is mediocrity?

Kevin Morgan Says:

January 28, 2021 at 7:38 am

Thanks, Patrick. I now get what you are doing—explaining why it didn't work. I think most of us are here, hoping there is something to be done.

Maryann Says:

January 28, 2021 at 7:40 am

Still trying to figure out what happened in Georgia. Harrison Deal had ties to the Governor, David Perdue and Kelly Loeffler but he was only a college intern. What kind of message was that supposed to send? Stick to your RINO script, don't back Trump, don't question the Stacy Abrams and Dominion takeover?

JimG Says:

January 28, 2021 at 7:45 am

Painful to read. Looking forward to reading the rest of the story so I know where we are right now. I hope in the end, you will let us know (if you know) what we can do to have the truth come out. That's all everyone wants. The truth needs to be known. Seems like General Flynn should have a voice with respect to President Trump.

Steve Says:

January 28, 2021 at 7:55 am

There are "people" that run the entire planet from the shadows. One of the basic tenants of control/torture is to give people hope, then crush it. Trump was hope. Hope has been crushed.

John Baudo Says:

January 28, 2021 at 8:00 am

The result of all this is simple in my mind. Either the conspiracy theorists are correct and Trump enlisted the military to monitor the foreign and domestic interference in the election and they are planning to take down this illegitimate administration at the "right time." Or, Trump and family are the self serving, narcissistic, opportunist and corrupt unit the left has always made them out to be and they will continue to try and stay in the political spotlight by claiming fraud when they don't have the proof or courage to reveal it. Either way it's disappointing that the President led us to believe the election was stolen yet he doesn't have the courage to allow the truth to be revealed. I'll actively voice opposition to Trump and his family ever being considered for public office again if they stay silent – period.

Margaux Says:

January 28, 2021 at 8:05 am

So all Trump had to do was sign on the dotted line. But as we know, people die when involved in politics. The bombed car is enough for me to know that trump probably saved a lot of lives, if not just his own by NOT signing that EO on foreign interference in our elections. I knew Rudy was sloshed all the time. Who sweats like that unless there's an excessive amount of alcohol or fat burning herbs in their system. How sad this entire story is. But it sounds unfinished. And is there an end to it? Are people (you, and anyone that gives a shit still working to save our elections?) And what about the StopTheSteal money? Do the donators know and get their money back? Rudy being kid 100,000 per week makes sense. So do we throw up

Our hands and never vote again Bc we know the lefties (extremely dangerous lefties) will go on to “win” every election from here on out? I know you can't have all the answers. But we aren't a third world country-although it certainly seems that way now with this incredible election fraud story. Now that thousands are out of work Will those ppl join in to stop this? Doubt it. They need to fight with their unions if they're smart enough. From the one interview I saw in Hannity, I have no hope. Politics is a dirty place, a Deadly place. And if that weren't true, I'd join in to help. Please continue your story. The country if not the world need to hear it. And hopefully come out with answers and actions to save us from the mentally ill pseudo prez we now have in office. His handlers are writing these EO's, the power hungry cheaters. He hasn't a clue what he's doing.

The Trump family can afford to walk away from this all. The every day working class (👩) can't.

I'm waiting to see what Trump does from his new office. Will he fight the fraud in the future? I hope Rudy isn't involved. He's done nothing to help. Ellis? I read threads about her loser work in traffic court. And here I was thinking that traffic court was too simple for her and that working for the prez was more her speed. If Mediocrity is Ellis, the threads were right and we never had a chance.

I hope this is not the end of the road to stop the fraud. America and the Constitution are two beautiful things that we must all protect. But how do we when judges are bought off or threatened? Or The WH has been captured by frauds? I pray for my country.

Thank you for sharing. Please tell us everything!

Mike From Canada Says:

January 28, 2021 at 8:05 am

Near Death Experience. That is what is needed. Thanks Patrick for helping fulfill that. I've read all the dire above and they reflect a death experience. The death of hope. Stop. Take a deep breath. Think. Trump is the ULTIMATE actor who does not just walk away. The EO's Cho is giving aren't supposed to go into effect for 30 days I understand. The US is a corpse. It is dead. It is a captured operation that was taken over a long time ago. Trump will be in office very soon. Has Cho flown on AF1? It HAD to be this way. Every single one of us NEEDS to feel deep down in their own soul the depth of depravity being taken on here. Trust God. Trust Truth. Trust the military and Generals Michael and Charles Flynn. Brothers. Ours too. Where are they? One, Michael I believe, is in charge of the Pacific Fleet. Do you Trust General Michael Flynn? Three aircraft carriers off the west coast of the US and two off the east. Think Cho is in control? Looks like Mnuchin's skills are coming in pretty handy. Hold The Line. Not just a catchphrase. God isn't done and neither am I.

Maxwell Says:

January 28, 2021 at 8:11 am

Many thanks for doing the hard work and staying in the arena, taking all the risk. I read the comments above and sprinkled among the well wishers are the nay sayers who can never be satisfied and never have a word of thanks for all the efforts, voluntary no less. I want to be on record as being one of Patrick's most avid supporters. While the story Patrick tells is difficult to consume, I find it overwhelmingly honest and consistent with my own 25 years of involvement at the highest levels of government. I have experienced many of the failings of structured government at the highest levels of military bureaucracy (4 star staffs) in war zones. These staffs aren't all bad but, the 4 star in charge is surrounded by a 'protection' agency that disallows ideas from migrating into his office. And, once an idea does make it past the 'gatekeeper' the time allotted to expose the important info is choked to the point where all meaningful conversation is lost. So frustrating. I have always been a Trump supporter and I do love the man but, I must say, his penchant to trust others around him is his Achilles heel. That has always been my concern and it was obvious from the beginning of his administration. That said, I would vote again for Trump. Despite the self promoting shit-heads around him, he was able to push through an agenda that most Americans could agree was, America First. Now that the election fraud is being harvested away from the Narrative by the controlling class of Atlas Shrugged, we have little choice but to take matters into our own hands. By that I mean reconnect with local political matters and if that fails, there will be a movement towards the unthinkable. It's coming. We are head long into our second civil war. Be ready.

Anonymous Says:

January 28, 2021 at 8:20 am

Thank you so much for your insight and time spent shedding light on some of the happenings in, the past election. I know more is to come and will reserve any judgment. I do however want to know where was the RNC and the millions of dollars they picked from donations? This was never about just Trump, but more about secure elections. What is the point in supporting RNC? In voting?

Bright Light Says:

January 28, 2021 at 8:23 am

My guess is Trump knew it all and decided not to pursue the election. It became clear he was completely alone (with the exception of Melania) These people are dangerous. Baron Rothschild, 56, one of the most powerful men in the world was taken out (heart attack). How many deaths have we heard about? Two Ukrainian witnesses against Biden tied and shot between the eyes found in a river. They can kill JFK. They can blow up twin towers. They can start wars. These are powerful people. Trump is also powerful but one has to pick his battles. I think he knows his only strength, his only hope, is the military and cleaning out the senate, congress, judicial system and swamp, as deep as it goes, with these supposed sealed indictments. He knows he can't do it alone.

As far as Jenna Ellis, I cant imagine how she got hired unless Guliani is being paid off. Listen to what she has been quoted as saying in 2016: 'I could spend a full-time job just responding to the ridiculously illogical, inconsistent and blatantly stupid arguments supporting Trump,' she said. 'But here's the truth: his supporters DON'T CARE about facts or logic. They aren't seeking truth.'

'Trump probably could shoot someone in the middle of NYC and not lose support,' she said, parroting a boast Trump had once made. 'And this is the cumulative reason why this nation is in such terrible shape: We don't have truth seekers; we have narcissists.'

She also floated a way Trump could be stopped.

She said the GOP could engineer a brokered 2016 Republican National Convention – comparing it to how the Electoral College works.

'Trump absolutely should not be the GOP nominee,'

Mike From Canada Says:

January 28, 2021 at 8:26 am

Stop. Hold The Line. This isn't over. Why isn't Cho using AF1? By April 1st DJT will be POTUS after we all get over the purposefully planted Near Death Experience we're necessarily experiencing. God has a plan and you are in it. Flynn brothers are Generals. One is right now in charge of the Pacific Fleet and three aircraft carriers off the west coast of the US. Plus two off the east coast. Would Cho put a Flynn in charge? Mnuchin's skills as a Hollywood producer are coming in real handy right now. Trust The Military, they are in charge, not Cho. Cho is show. We don't give up. God does not give up. Pray for DJT and ALL the children and All who fight for truth. Keep on Patrick, thanks for the insight. March 3rd, 4th and 5th hotels are booked up in DC. Hmmmmmmm..... WWG1 WGA! God isn't done with any of this yet and He wants you to help. Ask for His help, everyone.

Anonymous Says:

January 28, 2021 at 8:27 am

Did I miss the part on the meeting with Trump or is that in process? This is really disappointing and surprising! But we need to hear this story.

Susan C Says:

January 28, 2021 at 8:35 am

Patrick Byrne! God Bless you. I knew by your eyes and of course your name "Patrick", that you were genuine. I admire Sidney Powell too! She is a cracker-Jack.

I have worked as a mental health nurse for 40 years and I noticed something was off with Rudy, I attributed it to PTSD from the 9/11 and possibly self medicating. Trumps children might have been told to back off and or are off in their own space. I guess my weakness towards his children is showing through. Ya think?

I can tell you that the people in this Country are not going to sit back and let this fraudulent election fly. I have heard, it's too late now just wait and vote the crooks out! Or demand voter ID in the future. We the People voted in the November 3, 2020 election and election laws say we are entitled to a fair and honest election. Period. If we "wait until next time", we have given the fraudulent election a pass. It's ok, next time. We can not allow this to sit.

Others have said it's not just about President Trump, it's about our Vote, our Rights.

Biden is destroying our Country already, there will be no next time to vot because they have been given the pass to do what they want. Word has it that harris is purposefully shown standing behind biden as if helping him sign away are rights. Hat she and pelosi are planning on having Biden removed and they will take over. H Clinton is hovering around harris. Bad vibes we the people are having sitting here chewing our nails down.

What can be done? What can we do to throw the election out? Our Votes matter! We have a voice. Who can we push to listen? Act? The law is the law. Evidence is black and white. Many of us have written and called Congress about our vote and the fraud.

If we riot in the streets the way BLM did to get our point across, I doubt we will be allowed to get away with it. We probably will get shot. Is the Military going to intervene and arrest us if we have peaceful protests? There is so much we need to do, but we are not favored by the left so our actions are limited. The only person screaming in Congress about the fraudulent election is Rand Paul and maybe a few others. We need guidance. This can not stand, our Country, the Constitution and Our Freedom depend on us getting those traitors out of the White House!

Thank you for putting this article together and sharing what you are able with us. Please, we need guidance on how to make this right.

Texaspeaches Says:

January 28, 2021 at 8:44 am

Wow. Disheartening to hear of the level of incompetence. Will be anxiously waiting to hear about your intervention meeting with President Trump. Meanwhile, a couple of immediate goals come to mind for our future: 1) Figure out how to insure honest elections; 2) protect our Bill of Rights. Sadly, maybe neither are attainable.

The noble intention of your team is appreciated beyond words.

Leave a Reply

Write a response...

This site uses Akismet to reduce spam. Learn how your comment data is processed.